Valiant daughter wins state title

MEADVILLE — A record-breaking count of nearly 300 entries paraded through the show ring at the 1985 Pennsylvania Holstein Championship Show, held Thursday at the Crawford County Fairgrounds.

This is "the largest fall show the association has ever held," announced Bill Nichol, executive secretary of the Pennsylvania Holstein Association.

"There are five championship shows in July and August and the best of the breed is represented here. It's a tribute to the Association and to the industry to show the best.

"It's always a pleasure to be here to watch this great show and it's always the highlight of the year for the state association," he added.

Beginning with the bulls and continuing through every class, it was a display of the best Holsteins all the way. Judge Norman Hill, of Woodbine, Md., commented throughout the show about the exceptional quality he was seeing.

At the start of his reasons for a class of 19 entries, he said, "I'd like to congratulate the exhibitors on the depth running deep in this class of four-year-olds."

Hill had a difficult time placing them, granting several points to cattle all down the line and eventually pulling two youth division champions from that outstanding class of four-year-olds.

Balboa named champ

Representative of the show's tremendous quality was the 1985 grand champion, Cherry-Brook LTD Balboa, the first-place senior two-year-old. Shown on Thursday by Dave Dowler, this S-W-D Valiant daughter was winner of the reserve grand champion honors just two weeks ago at the Crawford County Fair.

Balboa is owned jointly by Dowler, of Meadville, Dave Thomas, a 4-H'er from Bruceton, W.Va., and Queens Manor Holsteins of Jamestown.

Dowler, a Mercer County extension agent, was quite proud of Balboa, since she is the first animal born on his farm and the first to carry his prefix. He keeps about 20 heifers on his home farm, and he also owns seven cows that are kept at other farms. Balboa and her dam are kept at Queens Manor.

Out of the excellent Hanover-Hill Rag Apple Rocky, Balboa is projected at 22,554 of milk and 880 of fat on her first lactation.

Reserve grand champion went to the well-known Leadfield Telstar Linda-ET, exhibited by the Doeberieners of the Queens Manor-Leadfield group. This aged cow earned the top spot at the Western Pennsylvania Championship Show in early August.

The six-year-old Linda is by Pawnee Farm Arlinda Chief and out of C Craigo Petro Telstar.

The junior champion title was given to Bob Morrell, Cochranton, with Merrillea Pete Marny, the first-place senior yearling. This Straight-Pine Elevation Pete daughter's credits include the junior championship at the western championship show and at the Crawford County Fair.

As he placed the senior yearlings, judge Hill remarked, "She is the best feet and legs animal I've seen today."

Globe Run Farm showed the day's reserve junior champion. An

Auction founders forecast better tobacco prices

BY JACK HUBLEY

LANCASTER — Martin Auctioneers Inc.'s auction facility near Intercourse will be the site of the state's first tobacco auction on Dec. 16.

During a meeting held at Martin's on Tuesday night, officers of the newly formed Pennsylvania Tobacco Auction, Inc., officially signed the organization into existence and discussed plans for the coming auction season.

Those present included Lancaster attorney Larry Miller, PTA's president; Lancaster auctioneer Eric Probst, who serves as the organization's secretary-treasurer; and PTA's five directors: Robert Todd, auctioneers Paul Martin Jr and Larry Martin, and two directors who prefer to remain anonymous

Though the bottom line in any business venture must be to turn a profit, "our organization was formed to put dollars in the farmer's pocket," stressed an enthusiastic Eric Probst following the meeting. Probst, who is serving as PTA's general manager, pointed out that Pennsylvania's traditional tobacco marketing procedure has resulted in substandard prices at the farm level, a situation that PTA hopes to rectify.

He noted that the sale of Pennsylvania's production of 609 Maryland Type tobacco will be PTA's top priority, with Type 41 being sold "if the need develops" Used in the manufacture of cigarettes, 609 is traditionally purchased by southern buyers who visit farmers and deal with them on a one-to-one basis. Although Pennsylvania Type 41 is sold in much the same manner, buyers are generally considered to be "local", said Probst. Type 41 is used in the manufacture of cigars and chewing tobacco

Rather than relying on the judgement of one buyer, then, an auction system will permit a group

NEDCO files Chapter XI papers

BY JAMES H, EVERHART

SYRACUSE, NY — The financially troubled Northeast Dairy Cooperative Federation, Inc. has filed bankruptcy papers in federal court, listing $30 million in liabilities and only $20 8 million in assets.

The action, filed Aug. 30 in the Federal Bankruptcy Court in Utica, NY, requests reorganization under Chapter XI of the Bankruptcy Act.

If approved, the arrangement would allow the troubled dairy organization to continue in operation while it seeks to work out an arrangement with creditors.

Even if all goes well, however, NEDCO will not be returning to the milk marketing business, at least not in the foreseeable future.

First, the organization's marketing members have gone to other co-ops or have made arrangements with handlers to sell milk directly.

Second, the federation has signed a non-compete agreement with Dairylea, the cross-town rival who accepted NEDCO marketing members June 14 when the federation's bank, CITICORP, revoked its line of credit and seized the organization's receivables.

Third, NEDCO has also sold its major processing plants, including the Fultonville fluid milk plant and the Fraser facility which manufactured cottage cheese and sour cream.

Thus the federation finds itself with no processing facilities, no milk to market and no customers . . and a $10 million deficit, most of it owed to producers.

Nevertheless, the federation hopes to continue as a bargaining co-op, returning to the role it once played successfully before embarking on the hazardous seas of milk marketing.

Lancaster seeks 'Friends' to preserve farmland

BY JACK HUBLEY

LANCASTER — Lancaster County's Agricultural Preserve Board underscored its commitment to preserving open space on Thursday by announcing a fund-raising drive aimed at slowing the loss of farmland to industrial and residential development.

Labeled the "Friends of Agricultural Land Preservation", the new initiative will help to underwrite the cost of purchasing deed restrictions on county farmland by soliciting memberships from the private sector.

Though Lancaster County has been widely acclaimed as the number-one nonirrigated agricultural county in the nation, farmers aren't the only ones who find the area's rural atmosphere and temperate climate to their liking. Farmland here continues to slip away at the rate of 1,500 to 3,000 acres a year, according to board chairman Amos Funk.

The county's Agricultural Preserve Board was founded in 1980, in response to even greater losses that averaged some 5,000 to 8,000 acres annually from 1964 to 1969.

To date, three preserves totaling

Philadelphia Eggs

Thursday, September 5
Report supplied by USDA

Market Comment: Prices unchanged. Demand for graded product was fairly good for the most part, but end of the week orders were tending to reflect lesser needs at the retail level in some quarters. Retail featuring was light but was adding to movement in some instances. Floor stocks remained in irregular balance but were generally adequate or available on all the jumbos. Ungraded offerings remained light and were often noted as confidently held, particularly on class grade-outs of large and heavier weight size.

Prices to retailers: sales to volume buyers, consumer grades white eggs in cartons delivered store door:

A Extra Large .73-.75; A Large .72-.74; A Medium .62-.64.

Market Comment: Prices generally unchanged. Seller offerings only spotty at best and adequate to short of full plant requirements. Plant schedules light and further reduced on a holiday period. Some inquiries from midwestern concerns adding stability to the undertone. Finished product sales also light with buyer offering resistance to seller asking prices.

Weights were mixed but mostly desirable to heavier than desired. Slaughter schedules were moderate. The undertone was steady to fully steady.

Today's L.T.L. asking prices were unchanged on U.S. Grade A at 54-61 cents.

THE OLD FARMER'S ALMANAC

SEPT. 9-15, 1985

Try to remember these days in September during December

Thirteen colonies formally renamed the United States by the Continental Congress Sept 9 1776 Average length of days for the week 12 hours 39 minutes New moon Sept 14 (Sat) Tornado hit Charleston S C killing 500 Sept 10 1811 James Madison married Dolley Payne Sept 15 1794 Poet Robert Lowell died at age 60 Sept 12 1977 Marriage is not a word but a sentence

Ask the Old Farmer: Why is the name tumbler applied to an eight ounce straight-sided flat bottomed drinking glass? G D Boston

There are two traditions about this One claims that originally the drinking glass was made with a round bottom and had to be held to prevent it from capsizing When a drinker had arrived at the point where he couldn't do this he was expected to call it a day The other claims that the flat-bottomed glass was designed to help the unsteady lad or tumbler

Home Hints To remove fat from your hands rub them with orange or lemon peel

OLD FARMER'S WEATHER FORECAST

New England: Week begins clear and cool mid through end of week rain continuing cool

Greater New York-New Jersey Partly cloudy mild at weeks beginning midweek rainy and warm end of week showers

NOW IS THE TIME

To Be Aware of Farm Safety Month

The month of September is designated as National Farm Safety Month. It's a time set aside to remind ourselves of the importance of safety. In a report just published by Dr. Dennis Murphy, Extension safety specialist at Penn State, for the period of 1980 through 1984, it shows that 236 people were killed in farm accidents in Pennsylvania during that period of time.

Some very interesting information is revealed in that report. The most hazardous month was July with 37 fatalities...I was surprised because I thought it would have been September or October, which had 27 in each month. The report also shows that Thursdays were the worst day of the week...and that's understandable, because if we're real busy on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, by Thursday our reflexes are a little slower and we are a little more careless.

An unfortunate part of the report shows that 24 children under 4 years of age were killed in farm accidents. This means that we, as parents, must be very strict in allowing these very young children around equipment.

The report also indicated that Lancaster County led the state in the number of fatalities from 1980 to 1984 with 18; York County was second with 10.

What this all means is that we must be "Safety Alert" at all times.

To Protect Show Animals

September, in Lancaster County, is Fair time. It is also a time to be concerned about the health of show animals. Fairs should be a place where we can exhibit our animals; they should not be a place for spreading diseases and other ailments. Be considerate of other exhibitors and of other show animals.

If your animals have any infectious or contagious problems, leave them at home; it's like keeping a sick child out of school to protect those who are healthy. If you do show, consult your veterinarian about necessary tests and protective vaccines.

When you return your livestock to the farm after the show, isolate them from other animals on the farm before introducing them to their herd mates.

To Check Feed Bins

We are coming into the fall season when we see considerable temperature change from day to night. This causes a lot of condensation and we see it on car windows in the morning. This same type of condensation takes place in the bulk feed bins on our farms. It causes the buildup of molds on the bins and in the feed.

When feed bins are cleaned out, they should be inspected thoroughly, right down to the boot. Also, when you are taking feed out of the bin, keep a close watch for chunks of feed; they will tell you if a problem is developing.

After cleaning out the bin, it should be sprayed with a mold inhibitor and allowed to dry. You can use calcium proprionate solution as the inhibitor, at the rate of two ounces per gallon of water for the spray. One of the best ways to prevent this condensation problem is to insulate the bin. The insulation will slow down the temperature fluctuation.

To Stop Fertilizing Trees and Shrubs

The time is here when we should not be applying any fertilizer to rose bushes, trees and shrubs. The season's growing period is about over and new growth should have a chance to harden before cold weather arrives. When we fertilize during the fall we encourage new growth, which will be tender, and will winter-kill in zero weather.

It is best to wait until early spring to apply any plant food to these types of plants. Mulching is a good practice to help conserve moisture and control weeds, but keep the fertilizer in the bag until the 1986 season.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

THE MODEL
September 8, 1985

Background Scripture:
Philippians 3 through 4.
Devotional Reading:
Philippians 4:10-13.

When I was a boy and later a youth, John Wayne was just about everyone's role model. He portrayed a style of manhood that all of us admired and many of us tried to emulate. He was the ideal man, we thought.

It's no wonder that Jesus Christ didn't really appeal to us all that much. And, although it is true that some of that lack of appeal lay in the presumably unmasculine artistic portraits of him, it was more what he said and was, that seemed to lie at the heart of it. Unlike John Wayne, Jesus never prevailed over the "bad guys" with his fists or guns. In fact, he didn't even seem to prevail over the "bad guys." It was they who prevailed over him. Nor did the cavalry arrive in the nick of time to save him from Calvary (pun intended).

HAVE THIS MIND

On Sundays, of course, we gave lip-service to Christ, calling him Lord, Master, Saviour and a host of other names. But, when it came to solving problems and living with conflict, both personal and social, it was John Wayne to whom we looked for the way in which we ought to behave. He was our model, not Christ.

Actually, I still have some trouble today in looking to Jesus instead of John Wayne. Of course, as a clergyman, I preach Christian love, extol peace, and exhort others to forgiveness and reconciliation. But last week something happened to reveal to me just what a hold Jo[illegible]e still has on me.

It was during the [illegible]A hostage crisis in Beirut, Lebanon. At [illegible] came the announcement that the hostages were coming home. One of the TV commentators was asking a leading political figure if he thought the U.S.A. ought now to retaliate to teach the people of Lebanon a lesson. It was at that point that John Wayne took over my emotions and I responded in a manner that would have earned his approval.

But, no sooner had I felt this urge for revenge, than I realized that what I was feeling was a violation of my relationship with Christ. "Have this mind among yourselves which you have in Christ Jesus," counsels Paul. In other words, let your thinking and feeling be guided by what was in his heart and mind. And I realized that vengeance was not "the mind of Christ."

OTHERWISE MINDED

Paul says, "Let those of us who are mature be thus minded: and if in anything you are otherwise minded, God will reveal that also to you" (Phil. 3:15). In that brief moment, God did reveal to me that I was "otherwise minded"–still looking to John Wayne for my answers instead of Jesus.

I still revere John Wayne as an exciting actor and unique personality. But the model the world needs now more than ever is Christ.

ASA proposes $50-an-acre 'FAIR' plan

ST. LOUIS, MO – U.S. soybean farmers are proposing an innovative and revolutionary new commodity program allowing soybeans to achieve a competitive position in world markets without endangering farmer profitability, according to the vice President of the American Soybean Association (ASA).

"Farmer delegates meeting in San Antonio at ASA's annual meeting believed it was time to make a change in our long-held position on the soybean loan program," said ASA Vice President and Missouri soybean farmer David Haggard. "These delegates approved a resolution directing the ASA Board of Directors to establish a final position on the soybean program in the 1985 farm bill. Priorities were given to an income enhancement program based on, but not limited to, a direct soybean acreage payment or a $5.02 per bushel 'marketing' loan."

Haggard said the ASA Executive Committee has voted to support a program which, they believe, will achieve the objectives set forth by the delegates. He said the "Farm Acreage Income Restitution" or "FAIR" program, has three components and is quite simple.

"First, ASA calls for a 1986 federal payment of $50 per acre to be made to soybean farmers, prior to planting, based on their 1981-1985 average acreage planted to soybeans," Haggard said. "A smiliar payment would be made in future years regardless of prices and be phased down gradually."

Second, ASA seeks a soybean loan program established annually at a rate equal to 75% of the average price received by farmers for soybeans over the past five marketing years, excluding the high-and low-valued years. Unlike current law, ASA seeks no minimum loan rate. Third, ASA opposes the application of a set-aside or any other acreage control mechanism for soybeans. ASA will not agree to any program containing set-asides, he said.

"We believe this proposed program will do much to restore profitability to soybean farmers," emphasized Haggard. "It will allow soybean and soybean product prices to achieve levels which will expand U.S. exports and bring enormous financial pressure on our foreign competitors."

He admitted the "FAIR" program differs from ASA's past position. However, he noted it is consistent with the new realities facing soybean farmers today such as subsidized foreign competition, anemic foreign demand, and increasingly restricted markets.

"Our 'FAIR' program will ensure farmers an income from growing soybeans every year, while allowing prices to achieve competitive, market-clearing levels," said Haggard. "Unlike target prices and marketing loans, the cost of our program to the federal government will be known upfront since the payment rate and acreage on which payments will be made are fixed."

ASA has advanced for public discussion a $50 per acre payment program for soybeans, wheat, feed grains, rice, cotton, and sunflowers. Haggard indicated ASA is not officially urging Congress to approve an across-the-board program because of ASA's firm policy of dealing only with soybeans. However, they do believe the "FAIR" concept for those commodities represents good, sound fiscal policy.

Haggard called the $50 per acre program "innovative" and "revolutionary." "If applied to those commodities, 'FAIR' would be a 'commodity-neutral' program that supports the income of farmers, not the price of commodities," he said.

The program, he explained, would free farmers to put their land to the best use. It would allow farmers to consider the land's productive capability, growing season, and commodity prices. The program would end commodity support programs which benefit one commodity over another, which force farmers to grow surplus crops in order to get federal income support, and which distort market forces.

Haggard said ASA hopes Congress will take a close look at an across-the-board "FAIR" program. However, if the concept is not adopted for other commodities, he indicated ASA will still urge Congress approve the "FAIR" program for soybeans.

Who Got the Best Buy?

Farmer Bob and Farmer Ray bought confinement equipment the very same day!

Farmer Ray thought he had a fantastic bargain — soon he discovered that a bargain product can be far more costly in the long run as everything soon rusted and corroded! Fencing Nursery Pens Farrowing Crates and Gestation Stalls — all now need to be replaced at today's higher costs

Farmer Bob chose Rohn ' Hot Dip Galvanized Agri Products and his equipment is still as good as new. The reason? Zinc is the finish that withstands corrosive elements longer and provides years of carefree reliable service

Hay contest champions named at Ag Progress

STATE COLLEGE — With 189 entries in this year's Hay and Hay Crop Silage Show at Ag Progress Days, show chairman Sid Bosworth was well pleased with the turnout.

The 1985 contest featured a change in format, with champions named in each of three hay categories. In previous years only a single grand champion had been named. In the hay crop silage event, however, both a grand and reserve champion were recognized.

"The competition was tough, and we had some very good samples," noted Bosworth, adding that the number of entries nearly doubled over last year's field.

Bosworth encouraged interested farmers to contact their county extension office a few weeks prior to next year's show for contest details. Following are show results:

Hay Show

Section 1, (field cured, no heat). Champion: Paul Bollinger, Myerstown (Lebanon Co.) Sample: Mixed hay, more than 50% legume.

Section 2, (partially field cured and heat dried) Champion: Jay McCarrell, Eighty-Four (Washington Co.). Sample: alfalfa, second cut.

Section 3, (partially field cured plus preservatives) Champion: Doug and Paul Vonanda, Howard (Centre Co.). Sample: alfalfa/grass mix, later cut.

Hay Crop Silage Show

Champion: Wayne Harpster, Spruce Creek (Huntingdon Co.).

Sample: Mainly grass, wilted, 60% moisture.

Reserve Champion. Herman Espy, Spruce Creek.

Sample· Legume/grass mix, wilted, 60% moisture

Reliable Feeding

Hard-packed and frozen silage makes feeding more than a routine chore.

Patz gives you two solutions to the problem — the RD-820 ring-drive silo unloader and the 98B surface-drive silo unloader. Both have a double-hook gathering chain with hardened steel cutters and claws that cut through frozen and packed silage.

- Spring-tensioned powered cutter keeps silo walls free of buildup.
- Preset depth-of-cut control makes feeding truly automatic (98B).
- Powerful blowers with adjustable impeller blades do the job.

We'll show you how to get the most performance for your money.

Farm crisis tops budget as priority, NFU says

DENVER – The U.S. agricultural economy has reached a crisis of such proportion that improving it must now top the Congressional budget resolution on the nation's priority list, members of the National Farmers Union Board of Directors said. And, they said, they will press that point in meetings they have requested with Agriculture Secretary John Block and the chairmen of the House and Senate agriculture committees.

"Without improved farm income, the Farm Credit System and other lending institutions will fail–and the cost to the budget will be even greater than the projected overruns caused by any Farm Bill proposal under consideration," they said. "Because of its enormity, this one aspect of the farm financial crisis alone is enough to cause agriculture to supercede the Congressional budget resolution as a national priority."

The budget cannot be the restriction for a 1985 Farm Bill that restores at least the cost of production--including debt retirement, management costs and a return on investment–to farmers, they said.

Congressional agriculture committees are now backing proposals for lower farm market prices. The Farmers Union leaders predicted that this would have a devastating effect on international money markets as countries like Argentina and Mexico would lose their ability to repay their world debt.

"We predict that if that happened, the shock value would finally force policy makers to wake up to the need for improved farm income when people in financial centers like New York City and London find low commodity prices to be the root of the problem," they said.

The state Farmers Union presidents acknowledged that improved farm income and commodity supply management will mean federal expenditures. But, it will not require the record $19 billion federal budget exposure incurred by the Reagan Administration for its one-time Payment-in-Kind program.

"This administration is the prime stumbling block now to a Farm Bill that will improve farm income. Yet when the administration faced an election two years ago and dealt with its own farm program mismanagement, money was no object and PIK was instituted," they said.

Trading nations around the world, including the European Economic Community and Canada, have indicated a willingness to go along with improved farm prices on the world market, but the U.S. must take the lead. Other good customers for U.S. farm exports, such as Japan, have publicly stated that quality product and reliable supply are more important than low price.

To accomplish these goals, NFU recommends commodity loan and/or target prices in harmony that will allow a return to the farmer based on cost of production. Parity prices will help maintain the family structure of agriculture and the rural community, they said. NFU urged strong supply management programs to keep production in line with demand and to protect the nation's soil and water resources.

Several hundred NFU members and unemployed workers, bankers and rural business people from across the nation will lobby for those goals in Washington when Congress returns next month.

Corn growers criticize customs' ethanol ruling

ST. LOUIS – The National Corn Growers Association (NCGA) has filed an injunction with the U.S. Court of International Trade in New York protesting the U.S. Customs Service ruling which allows any and all shipments of ethanol fuel blends from Brazil to enter this country free of the 60 cents per gallon duty.

"We've also written President Reagan," says Harold Cutler, NCGA acting president from North Carolina, "opposing in the strongest terms possible this illegal ruling by the Customs Service which creates a massive loophole in U.S. law that the Congress mandated an import fuel tariff. This allows speculative importers to avoid completely the 60 cents per gallon import duty causing irreparable harm to U.S. corn growers, refiners and processors.

"It is again evident this Administration's trade policy is nothing but lip service to American agriculture and industry. When we've been working hand in hand with the domestic ethanol industry, publically supported by this Administration, to promote ethanol made from corn, then the Administration turns and supports this action which would effectively 'shut down" the domestic demand for U.S. corn in the U.S. ethanol fuels industry.

"The consequences of the Customs Service ruling on August 27 will not only create irreparable damage to U.S. corn farmers but it will also result in lost revenues to the U.S. Treasury Department and ultimately the U.S. taxpayer," says Cutler. "Should the projected 500 million gallons of highly subsidized Brazilian ethanol fuel blends be allowed to be imported into the U.S., the following impact would be felt:

- The U.S. Treasury would lose $330 million in import duties.
- 200 million bushels of corn now used for ethanol production would be displaced and added to our current burdensome surplus.
- Assuming an average yield of 110 bushels of corn per acre, 1,820,000 acres of land will now be in surplus.
- Assuming an average of 100 acres of corn per farmer, 18,200 fewer farmers are needed.
- Cash receipts from corn sales of at least 15 cents per bushel would be lost–or about $1 billion.
- To acquire the corn which would be displaced and put it in storage, the U.S. Department of Agriculture would pay $510 million to farmers plus future storage charges and interest costs.

"The potential loss in jobs and revenue to an already depressed farm economy and to this country is a high price to pay for the illegal rulings of the Customs Service which benefit our competitors. We've asked President Reagan in the strongest terms possible to reverse the U.S. Customs Service August 27 ruling immediately," says Cutler.

Delaware Holstein claims honors at Maryland State Fair

BY JOYCE BUPP
Staff Correspondent

TIMONIUM, Md. – An outstanding Delaware-bred, three-year-old Holstein has notched yet another win in her record of victories that continues to swell as the summer tanbark season progresses.

Cain-View Valiant Rose topped the impressive three-year-old cow class Monday at the Maryland State Fair's Holstein competition, and then won Canadian judge Lowell Lindsay's favor for the senior and grand champion banner.

Earlier this year, the SWD Valiant daughter earned top honors in the Maryland State Futurity, and was named champion at both the spring Delaware State Holstein Show and the Delaware State Fair in July.

Bred and owned by the Delbert Cain family, Cain-View Farm, Harrington, Del. "Val" isn't just a pretty cow taking the show trail by storm. In her first lactation, she pumped out an impressive 365-day record of 24,624 milk, with a 4.4 percent butterfat test and 1072 fat. She scored VG-89 as a two-year-old, then bounded to EX-92 in her second classification.

Following behind the champion through the three-year-old class, and then on to the reserve senior and grand honors, was JFM Pete Gwennette, exhibited by Marion Andrew, Kents Reserve Farm, Centerville. Sired by Straight Pine Elevation Pete, she milked a first lactation of 17,500 with 591 fat.

Judge Lindsay credited the pair as "closest to what we're looking for" from the some 300 head polished and paraded through the fair's spacious Cow Palace. He especially praised the dairy character and strong pasterns of the champion, and commended the strength and scale of the pair.

Another big winner was 13-year-old Matt Iager, whose first-place, four-year-old earned the Fulton 4-H'er the coveted trophy for best bred and owned entry. His Md-Maple-Lawn TT Etta is by Hanover Hill Triple Threat-Red, and milked over 20,000 in her second lactation.

Matt's trophy joined a host of awards accumulating at the family's Md-Maple Lawn Farm in the wake of the 4-H project cow's winning ways. At the state 4-H show, held earlier during the fair's 10-day run, Etta was selected Supreme Champion over all breeds. She captured a similar honor at the Howard County Fair, and took the reserve spot in Montgomery County competition. Matt is the son of Charles and Judy Iager.

In the reserve junior champion slot was the junior yearling winner shown by long-time Maryland exhibitors, Kingstead Farms, Damascus. Kingstead Tony Jamie is sired by Marshfield Elevation Tony.

The prized premier banners split between two noted Maryland Holstein breeders, the Marlin Hoff family, New Windsor, and Marion Andrew, Centerville. Along with the premier breeder banner, the Hoff family copped wins in two of the most prestigious group classes, senior best three females and breeder's herd of five females.

The several hundred spectators at ringside remained attentive through the day-long show, which also featured awards to several breeders and 4-H judging members.

Hill, Skinner, King receive Maryland Holstein plaudits

BY JOYCE BUPP
Staff Correspondent

TIMONIUM, Md. — Maryland State Fair's gigantic Cow Palace provides a perfect setting for the impressive showing of registered Holsteins that turns out for this popular Labor Day competition.

The Maryland Holstein Association has chosen this setting, colorfully decorated with flags and colors representing the state's 23 counties, in which to annually honor individuals whose contributions have enhanced the registered Holstein breed and the dairy industry. Both junior and senior breeder awards, and a distinguished service recognition, are presented in this annual ceremony.

William H. "Buddy" Hill, Jr , of Crewe, Va., is this year's Maryland Holstein Association Distinguished Service Winner.

Hill, currently a regional National Holstein consultant in the Southeast, began his work in the dairy industry at the tender age of seven, when he began helping milk his family's herd of cows. He was a DHIA tester while in high school, and highlights of his 4-H career include winning the Maryland all-breed fitting and showing competition in 1945, and being part of the state's 1946 judging team which won the national contest.

In 1949, he assumed management of H.B. Millhauser's Logwood Farm, near Reisterstown, building the herd to a national reputation both for production and showring accomplishments. Logwood entries won the Maryland Fair's grand champion honors a total of nine times, more than any other exhibitor thus far.

Their aged cow, Prosperity Hill Sesame Fobes, was grand champion of the 1955 International Dairy Show in Chicago, and for many years her head photo was used as the "ideal cow head" to represent the Holstein industry.

Hill was an early promoter of the idea of forming a Maryland state herd for exhibiting at regional and national shows. He was also part of an innovative 1950's group known as the Classic Five, a group of breeders that worked together in bull purchases and herd management improvement.

Along with his wife, Charlotte, and their sons Bill and Bob, Hill has actively served the Holstein industry in a variety of ways. While he was the state Holstein president in 1965, Buddy and Charlotte began their sponsorship of a Maryland Young Breeders award, presented annually for 20 years to an outstanding Holstein breeder under age 36.

Winner of that award this year is the Donald Skinner family, who farm 350 acres of Maryland's Eastern Shore near Centerville.

Skinner purchased his first animals in 1961, for 4-H project use. After graduating from high school in 1968, he began farming with his father.

Today, the herd of 70 registered homebreds averages 18,896 milk and 705 fat, with a classification BAA of 104.3 on 60 head. In 1984, Donald and Suzanne received the Progressive Breeder Award.

Do farmers need help getting started?

NEWARK, DE – Getting started in farming today is almost prohibitively expensive unless a beginning farmer inherits a farm, is independently wealthy, receives substantial help from family or friends, or is content to farm mostly rented land. In Delaware and Maryland the price to buy a farm averages over $300,000 and may cost far more. To the expense of buying farmland and buildings must be added production costs for machinery and equipment, livestock, fertilizer, seed and other supplies.

For several years now, farmers have had to pay high interest rates to finance farm purchases and production costs. This places a heavy debt burden on beginning farmers, often resulting in negative cash flows and possibly failure within the first few years.

"Under the difficult economic conditions facing agriculture, prospects for beginning farmers remain bleak," says University of Delaware extension farm policy specialist Gerald F. Vaughn. "The average age of U.S. and Delmarva farmers is over 50 years. With entry costs so high in this occupation, who will replace them when they retire? Must their farms simply become part of still larger farms?"

Vaughn suggests that the process by which retiring farmers are replaced might be considered a matter of concern, and thus a public policy issue. "A number of states have launched programs to help beginning farmers, supplementing aid available through the Farmers Home Administration of USDA," he says. "Minnesota and North Dakota probably have the most successful models."

Such programs generally provide assistance to beginning farmers either in the form of 90 percent loan quarantees, interest payment subsidies or direct loans. There also are non-lending forms of assistance, including tax incentives for selling land to beginning farmers, land transfer systems and land trusts.

Though several of these programs date from the 1970s and have aided many beginning farmers, Vaughn says it's too soon to measure their impacts. However, he feels the programs may warrant study and discussion by farm organizations and public officials in Delmarva's three states.

"By enabling better cash flow during the critical start-up years, aid to beginning farmers improves their chances of becoming established and helps assure a healthy competitive agricultural industry, most capable of serving the public interest," the economist says.

Not everyone agrees that young farmers should get such assistance, however.

"Arguments against aid to beginning farmers also deserve attention," Vaughn says. "Some people feel that increasing the credit available to agriculture may encourage unwise farm expansion and push land prices unrealistically upward. Also, established farmers who made it on their own may feel such aid is unfair interference with free enterprise competition.

"Too often," says the economist, "a beginning farmer makes the mistake of trying to start at the top, trying to succeed too fast. Instead, he or she should develop the farm business gradually, keeping its size consistent with managerial ability and financial position.

"Delmarva public policymakers may want to consider the need for aid to beginning farmers, along with the likely impacts of specific forms of assistance," Vaughn concludes. "If an aid program is drafted, it probably should be tailored to Delmarva conditions, with aid carefully targeted to those who truly need it to start farming."

Maryland Holstein plaudits

Skinner is secretary of his local Holstein club and a past county Holstein club and DHIA president. He is a state director for Sire Power, local 4-H club leader and livestock chairman for the Queen Anne County Fair.

W. I. "Billy" King, whose Irvington cattle have become nationally-known, was honored on Monday as the Maryland Senior Breeder of the year. King and his father purchased their first registered Holstein in 1937, at a sale at Lauxmont Farms, in Wrightsville, Pennsylvania.

Their early herd sire was of Donloggin breeding, tying the famed Donloggin lines to Canadian bloodlines added to the Irvington herd.

In the early 1950's, the Irvington herd was the largest purebred Holstein herd in the United States. Their show winnings include many Maryland State Fair awards, including six grand championships taken by homebred entries, and dozens of honors captured at shows throughout the Southeast region.

One of the farm's most well-known animals is Irvington Pride Admiral, EX-92, a sire whose name still commands pedigree respect. He and full brother Irvington Commander sold in 1961 to Curtiss Breeding Service in Carey, Ill., for $60,000, believed to be a record price for such a pair at that time.

King counts numerous All-American and All-Maryland awards among the Irvington honors. Over the years he's developed over fifty 100,000-pound producers.

King also earned a place in Maryland Holstein history for helping put together the "Astronaut" syndicate. He selected Paclamar Astronaut, a son from Paclamar Farms in Boulder, Colo., for a national convention sale, hosted in 1964 by the Maryland Holstein Association. The buying syndicate of ten arranged for semen to be distributed through Curtiss, and Paclamar Astronaut went on to become one of the all-time Holstein great sires, with 53,949 daughters in 12,569 herds.

King's service to the industry has included serving as director and president of the state Holstein Association, former director of Maryland and Virginia Milk Producers, and various roles of leadership to dairy youth. He has also served on the Maryland Agriculture Commission, the state's Wholesale Meat Advisory Board and takes part in a host of civic and community activities.

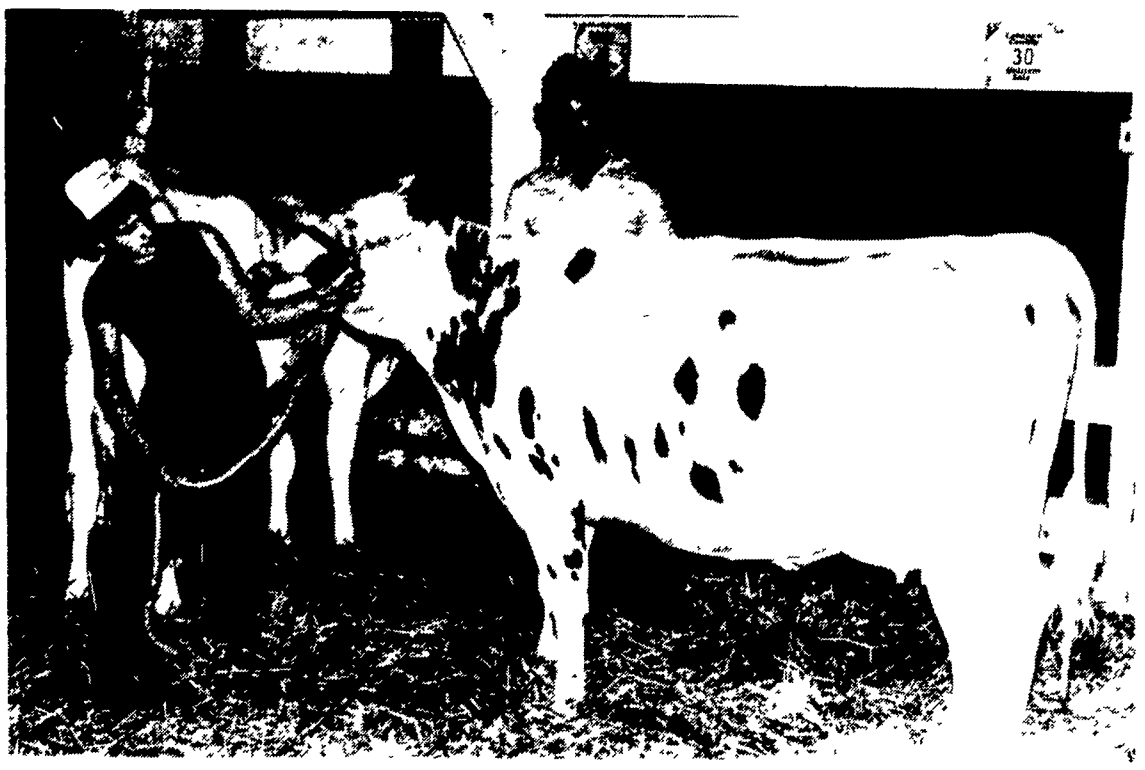
Sexation daughter tops Lebanon sale



David Richardson of Forest Hill, MD stands with Zahncroft Glendell Frankie, purchased at the Lebanon County Holstein Club's annual sale for $1,875. She is held by David Lentz of Lebanon.

LEBANON — A Sexation daughter with an impressive pedigree was the top-selling animal in the annual sale sponsored by the Lebanon County Holstein Club.

Royal-Dream Sexation Kitten, just fresh and producing 70 to 80 pounds of milk daily, brought consignor D. Lamar Witmer of Manheim $2,100

The animal, a descendant of the Kingstead line from Maryland, was sold to Bob Harnish of Manheim.

Her dam, Kingstead Kingpin Kitty, had a record of 22,810 pounds with 3 8 percent butterfat as a 2-year-old, and her grand-dam, Kingstead Hi Kate recorded a 21,655 pound record with a 4 4 percent fat test, as a 3-year-old She was sired by Ocean View Sexation.

The second highest selling animal, Zahncroft Glendell Frankie, earned $1,875 for consignor Dennis G Sattazahn of Womelsdorf, on a bid by David Richardson of Forest Hill, Md. Her dam, Lamphier Willow Farrah, had a record of 21,320 pounds of milk, with a 3.8 percent test, as a 7-year-old

Sale officials generally were pleased with the results, which averaged $937 75 for 50 animals Though the total was slightly less than last year's total of $973 75, the presence of five open heifers in the list of offerings — four more than last year — made the results look less impressive, said sale official Dale Hoover.

In fact, the average of bred and milking animals — $999.56 — is actually slightly higher than last year's figure

"They sold well, considering the situation in the dairy industry," said Hoover

York Conservation District offers no-till drill

YORK — The York County Conservation District, in cooperation with Melvin J. Sheffer, Inc., will continue to provide the farmers of York County with an opportunity to rent a no-till drill. The drill has done a commendable job drilling soybeans and alfalfa for several county farmers this summer.

The purpose of this program is to encourage the use of conservation tillage in York County to save soil, soil moisture, and tillage costs for farmers, as well as improving water quality by keeping valuable fertilizer and pesticides on the farm.

A no-till drill can play an important part in an overall conservation tillage scheme. The drill program allows the farmer to use a no-till drill on his farm for $12 per acre.

Egypt asks bids on bonus wheat

WASHINGTON — Secretary of Agriculture John R. Block has announced that the government of Egypt has issued a tender calling for offers from U.S. exporters for 300,000 metric tons of U.S.-produced wheat. The tender was made under the Export Enhancement Program announced by USDA for Egypt on July 26.

Block said this is the first U.S.-origin wheat tender by an eligible country under the Export Enhancement Program. This program offers government-owned commodities as bonuses to U.S. exporters to expand sales of U.S. agricultural products to specified countries to counter unfair trade practices.

The bonus will be made in the form of wheat from stocks of the Commodity Credit Corporation to enable U.S. exporters to compete at commercial prices for wheat in the Egyptian market.

Block said the tender called for offers by U.S. exporters to be submitted to Egypt no later than noon Tuesday, Sept. 3. The tender requested offers for soft red winter and/or white wheat with shipment of 150,000 metric tons in October and 150,000 metric tons in November on a cost and freight basis.

Bicksler consignment tops Berks Holstein Club Sale

BY ROBIN PHILLIPS
Staff Correspondent

READING — The Berks County Holstein Club held its annual consignment sale Aug. 29, at the Fairgrounds Square Mall, Reading. The 42 black and whites averaged $1039 on bids from the large crowd throughout the sale barn.

For the second year in a row, the consignment of Ray Bicksler, Richland, brought the highest money for the evening. Russelldale Pete Patches sold for $2050 to Gary and Barbara Lentz, Lebanon.

A daughter of Straight Pine Elevation Pete, Patches featured a strong maternal line. Her dam, by Gay Ideal, is scored VG-87, with records to 16,997 pounds milk and fat tests to 4 percent.

The granddam of Patches is an excellent Chief daughter with records over 25,000 pounds milk and fat tests up to 4.5 percent.

Just fresh for the sale, the three-year-old Patches also boasts a paternal sister with high production and test at 24,060 pounds milk and 4.4 percent fat. This paternal and three-quarters sister is also VG-87 and has seven sons going into A.I. service.

Second high money of the sale went to a consignment of Nevin E. Mast, Oley. His Bendy-Brook Elevation Hawk, a three-year-old brought $1850 on the bid from Douglas Hayward, Laureldale.

With a two-year-old record over 16,900 pounds milk at a 4.2 percent test, Hawk sold dry and due in September for her buyers. A daughter of Elevation, the production-packed Holstein featured high test throughout her maternal line. She also added type to her features by scoring very good as a two-year-old.

Several other consignments surpassed the $1300 mark, including:

•Show-Tops Tony Reba, consigned by Show Tops Farm, Alburtis, and purchased by Glenn Stoltzfus, Morgantown, for $1475;

•Keystone Tony Terry, consigned by Keystone Farm, Easton, and purchased by Daniel Schuler, Fleetwood, for $1325;

•Du-Mar Mars Sapphira, consigned by Darrell Alderfer, Harleysville, and purchased by LaVerne Moser, Bally, for $1325;

•Mil-Joy Chairman Bing, consigned by Ernest Miller, Hamburg, and purchased by Ronald Kurtz, Fleetwood, for $1300;

•Glen-Moore Creek Lucky, consigned by David Weaver, Glenmore, and purchased by Kervin Fuls, Bangor, for $1425.

Dean Hartman, Reading, served as sale chairman, with the Remsburg Sale Service conducting the sale.

Members sought for Chester County Crop Management Assoc.

WEST CHESTER — The board of directors of the Chester County Crop Management Association has announced a new fall membership program. Farmers can join the association for $2 per acre.

Services to participating farmers include: soil testing, yield checks, manure spreader calibration, field checks for problem weeds, establishment of individual field records, and development of a list of chemicals and fertilizers for next spring's crops.

Tom Cochran, field technician for the Chester County Crop Management Association reminds crop producers that fall is the time to test soil, so they can analyze the results and plan a cost-efficient, organized crop production program on their farm.

He says that individual field history records, including soil test results and crop rotations, are critical in helping improve production, lower pest and disease damage, and combat problem weeds.

"The off-season is the time to establish these field records," says Cochran, "because their analysis this winter can help your cropping program next spring."

The $2 acreage fee assures membership in the association until Dec. 31, 1985.

For more information call the Chester County Extension Service at 215-696-3500.

Around here most top hybrids have one thing in common.

They're all from Pioneer.

When most seed salesmen stop by to talk, they usually spend their time talking about that one "hot" number they have to sell.

But your Pioneer sales representative is a little different. He has a whole line up of top performing hybrids. So, when he comes by, he doesn't talk just one hybrid. He talks HYBRIDS. He talks corn.

Performance wise, 3744 is tough to beat. Besides outyielding the competition by a wide margin over the last three years, 3744 usually dries down faster. It has excellent root and stalk strength, resists Northern, Southern and Carbonum Leaf Blights, and does well under higher populations and higher management or irrigation.

3352

This newcomer has already proven itself as the yield leader for its maturity. Over the last three years in this area, 3352 holds a significant yield advantage against competitive hybrids. Now, that kind of performance speaks for itself. But besides yields, 3352 has very good emergence and early vigor along with excellent staygreen and leaf disease resistance against Northern and Southern Leaf Blights, Eyespot and Gray Leafspot. This hybrid is going to surprise a lot of folks.

A leading hybrid with the ability to deliver big, hefty yields in poor growing seasons as well as good growing seasons. 3378 owes much of this success to its hearty agronomic traits like outstanding plant health, superb standability, fast emergence, strong drouth tolerance and ears that "flex" to accommodate growing conditions. With so much going for it, it's not hard to see why 3378 is a lot of growers' favorite corn. Plant some and you'll be convinced too.

Gor-Wood-D, Queens Manor claim state Holstein banners

Ocean-View Sexation offspring, Globe-Run Sexy Darlene was the second place senior yearling.

A son of the reserve grand champion captured the champion bull banner for the Queens Manor-Leadfield exhibitors. Leadfield Priority-ET is a Columbus senior yearling out of Leadfield Telstar Linda-ET. Priority was also champion at the western championship show.

A southcentral entry, Le-Ida Val Mr. Nate, bred and owned by Cindy Showaker, Newville, was named reserve champion bull. The S-W-D Valiant son is a senior calf out of Le-Ida Miss Elevation Nora.

The coveted premier banners were split between Queens Manor and Gor-Wood-D Acres, Mansfield. Queens Manor claimed the premier exhibitor award, while the Gordon and Dorothy Wood family, who were easy winners in the northeast championship show, earned the state's top breeder honors.

Keystone Futurity

The Pennsylvania Holstein Championship Show also has an exclusive Keystone Futurity Class. This year's winner, Santee-Acres Ivan Secret, born Jan. 8, 1982, was bred and owned by Kenneth and Jane Benner, Millerstown.

Ken Raney, of the state Holstein association, explained how the futurity works, with the animals selected as calves by the owners and registered then with the association. The owner pays a small fee each year until the animal matures, and then it competes at the Pennsylvania Championship show, where 50 percent of the money from the entry fees is awarded to the first-place animal.

Raney said his only regret is that the futurity has not caught fire in Pennsylvania, as it has in other states. This year, only two animals (although 12 remained eligible through this year) entered the state show ring.

Youth division winners

Junior division champions were also named during the show on Thursday. Earning the grand champion youth title was Conrid Astrostar Lynn, exhibited by 4-H'er, and member of the Queens Manor crew, Justin Doeberiener.

Out of Conrid Astor Tracy Lynn, the four-year-old Astrostar Lynn was bred by Howard J. Hammond III. In the past few weeks the Leadfield Stardom-ET daughter has won several championships, including the top award at the Crawford County Fair (beating out the Cherry Brook LTD Balboa entry) and the junior division grand championship in the western championship show.

Reserve grand honors went to John F. Stamy IV, Mechanicsburg, showing his homebred Manor-Grove Beatnik Melisse. Sired by Royal-Haven Elevation Beatnik and out of Manor-Grove Molly Chief Jealus, Melisse stood second to Astrostar Lynn in the four-year-old class.

Stamy's entry earned the grand championship of the southcentral championship show a few weeks ago.

A pair of junior yearlings captured the junior championships in the junior division. Spring-Lake-Vu Commlady Camero, a Wauk-A-Way Fond Reliance daughter, was named junior champion. Out of Spring-Lake-Vu Camero Commlady, Camero was bred by Russell Woodcock and exhibited by 4-H'er Michele L. Freyermuth of Cochranton.

In the reserve junior champion spot stood Sequa Slim Fanny, another Justin Doeberiener entry. Bred by Stephanie Kay Godwin, Fanny is a Shanghigh Brandsons Slim daughter out of Sequa FML Pixie.

Irene Benner exhibited the 1985 Keystone Futurity winner.

Bill Nichol congratulated Gordon Wood, winner of the premier breeder banner and Ed Doeberiener, winner of the exhibitor honors. Also pictured is Laszlo Mozes, show chairman.

Youth division winners were Justin Doeberiener and John Stamy IV. Pictured with them are dairy princesses Nancy Mitrich, alternate state princess, and Jill Hyde, Crawford County.

Marion Alsdorf, sponsor of the youth junior champion award, stands with Michele Freyermuth and her junior champion in the youth division.

Ron Wood exhibited the first-place 100,000-pound cow. Also pictured are Nancy Mitrich, Pennsylvania alternate dairy princess, and Helen and Jennifer Anthony, trophy sponsors.

MOPRO

100
LIQUID SILAGE FORTIFIER

has been used by progressive farmers for over 16 years. University tested and proven MOPRO Liquid Silage Fortifier is formulated to balance the major mineral and protein deficiencies of silages. It also prevents loss from mold and rot after being removed from the silo or trench. MOPRO is added at the time of ensiling and is applied by metering equipment with very little handling cost. MOPRO will not corrode mild steel tanks or brass fittings and has no free ammonia odor to irritate the eyes or skin. MOPRO is a homogeneous solution of ammonia salts, urea, cane molasses, and minerals (except salt and calcium) in an efficient liquid carrier. It provides nitrogen for improved fermentation in the rumen and contains a mineral balance of phosphorous, magnesium, and trace elements including selenium. MOPRO 100 will give a resulting silage of up to 14.3% protein.

of buyers to appraise the finished product. "They (buyers) can see the finished product on the auction floor, rather than seeing a small part of the crop in a stripping room or hanging in a barn," Probst pointed out. This will result in fairer prices for growers, he said.

Buyers also stand to benefit by an auction system, Robert Todd said. "Buying and travel time should be cut in half without any problem," Todd said.

Probst emphasized that Pennsylvania Tobacco Auction, Inc., will not be run as a cooperative, and growers won't be required to join the organization to sell their tobacco. The only financial commitment required of sellers will be a two-cent-per-pound commission when the tobacco is sold.

PTA's first sale is slated for Dec. 16, with sales continuing on Monday, Wednesday and Friday through the early part of 1986. Farmers can register all or part of their harvest on any sale day and should notify the auction at least a week prior to their expected sale date.

Tobacco will be received at the auction during the afternoon or early morning before the sale. Auction personnel will prepare the tobacco for sale following delivery, and will also load it after the sale.

Growers will be present at the time of sale and will have the option to accept or reject a bid. Tobacco may remain on the auction floor for three sale days without any additional fees being charged to the grower.

In addition to using Martin's existing facilities, PTA plans to erect a new tobacco auction building with 6600 square feet of floor space. The expansion is contingent upon zoning approval later this month, said Probst.

While tobacco farming in other other states may falter under an administration unsympathetic to government funded tobacco support programs, said Probst, Lancaster County's family-oriented ag economy is well suited for the labor intensive business of growing and harvesting tobacco.

Lancaster County dominates the Keystone State's tobacco industry, accounting for 90 percent of Pennsylvania's 12,000 acres planted in tobacco in 1984. Last year's harvest of over 20 million pounds sold for slightly less than $19 million.

Farmland preserve

41,000 acres have been established. Thirty farms have been placed under deed restrictions on either a permanent or long-term (25 years) basis. Deed restrictions were donated on 18 of these farms, with 12 farms receiving incentive payments of $250 per acre.

Though much has been accomplished in the past five years, "things aren't happening fast enough," said County Commissioner and Agricultural Preserve Board member James Huber during opening remarks at an APB press conference on Thursday. Huber pointed out that $250,000 in federal cost share funds made available through the County Commissioners this year was not enough to get the job done.

Farmers interested in learning more about the state's first tobacco auction can contact PTA at 768-7100 after Sept. 10. Written correspondence should be directed to Pennsylvania Tobacco Auction, Inc., P.O. Box 57, Gordonville, PA, 17529.

Board chairman Amos Funk concurred, stating that the current rate of farmland loss is unacceptable, even at the low end of the 1,500-to-3,000-acre estimate. "In 50 years we'll lose 75,000 acres of some of the best agricultural land in the world," he said. Funk said that the board's ultimate goal is to preserve 278,000 acres of the county's best farmland.

To that end, the board hopes to sign up at least 1,000 Friends as soon as possible, said Funk.

The Friends initiative has targeted the entire spectrum of those concerned about the plight of the county's farmland, from the grassroots individual level to business and industry. Memberships from $10 to $1,000 and over are available.

The board has scheduled its first annual meeting and dinner for Nov. [illegible] at Lancaster's Olde Hickory Inn in recognition of the new membership. Tickets will be available throught the board's office by the end of September.

In addition to approaching the farming community, special appeals for memberships will be made to the tourism industry, business and industry both within and outside the ag sector and trusts and foundations, said board director Alan Musselman.

To elevate farmland preservation from concept to successful reality will require a commitment from both the agricultural and nonfarming communities, Musselman concluded.

Those interested in more details concerning membership in Friends of Agricultural Land Preservation can contact the Lancaster County Agricultural Preserve Board at 299-8355.

USDA charges livestock dealer

WASHINGTON — The U.S. Department of Agriculture has charged Richard F. Baumert, of Rt. 1, Herndon, Pa., with doing business as a livestock dealer without a bond.

Baumert buys cattle at public auction markets in central Pennsylvania, Maryland, the Shenandoah Valley area of Virginia, and in West Virginia.

A USDA official said Baumert was notified that his $30,000 surety bond was being terminated on June 14 and it would be necessary to obtain a replacement bond in order to legally remain in business.

B.H. (Bill) Jones, head of USDA's Packers and Stockyards Administration, said Baumert has continued his livestock dealer operations without obtaining a bond despite the official warning.

Baumert has a right to a hearing on the federal administrative charges filed by USDA under authority of the Packers and Stockyards Act.

If the charges are proven, he will be placed under a cease and desist order, similar to a permanent injunction. His registration to do business as a livestock dealer could also be suspended and he could be ordered to pay a civil penalty.

The P&S Act is an antitrust, fair trade practice and payment protection law. It is designed to maintain integrity in the marketing of livestock, poultry and meat, and economic law and order in the marketplace.

USDA scientists find a natural insecticide in neem tree

WASHINGTON – Neem, a native tree of Asia and Africa, has yielded a new kind of insecticide, U.S. Department of Agriculture scientists said.

On flower and nursery crops neem products killed or repelled insects when sprayed on leaves or applied to potted plant soil, said insect scientist Hiram Larew.

In other experiments, six common types of cockroaches were killed by neem-laced baits, said entomologist Victor Adler. Larew and Adler are with USDA's Agricultural Research Service at Beltsville, Md.

"For centuries, neem leaves and seeds have helped people control insects in the tropics," Larew said. "Now, we are finding ways to use neem in U.S. agriculture.

"As natural products, neem insecticides are probably biodegradable and environmentally safe, although not all tests are complete," he said.

In Larew's work, the first commercial neem product to result from research by USDA and other scientists controlled up to 99 percent of leafminers, a pest costing flower and vegetable growers over $15 million yearly in California alone.

The product, Margosan-O, is being considered by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency for registered use on vegetable and ornamental crops.

Neem-based products for cockroach control are not yet available to consumers, said Adler. In experiments, he found that both Margosan-O and another lab-tested formula killed young cockroaches and limited egg laying by adults.

Larew said that research by USDA and other agencies in the late 1970's showed that neem could potentially control over 80 major insect pests. The work sparked wide interest by scientists here and abroad to develop neem products to possibly replace some synthetic insecticides.

USDA's earlier studies showed that Japanese beetles would rather starve than eat some of their favorite plants that had been treated with neem, according to scientists at the agency's Japanese Beetle Research Labatory at Wooster, Ohio.

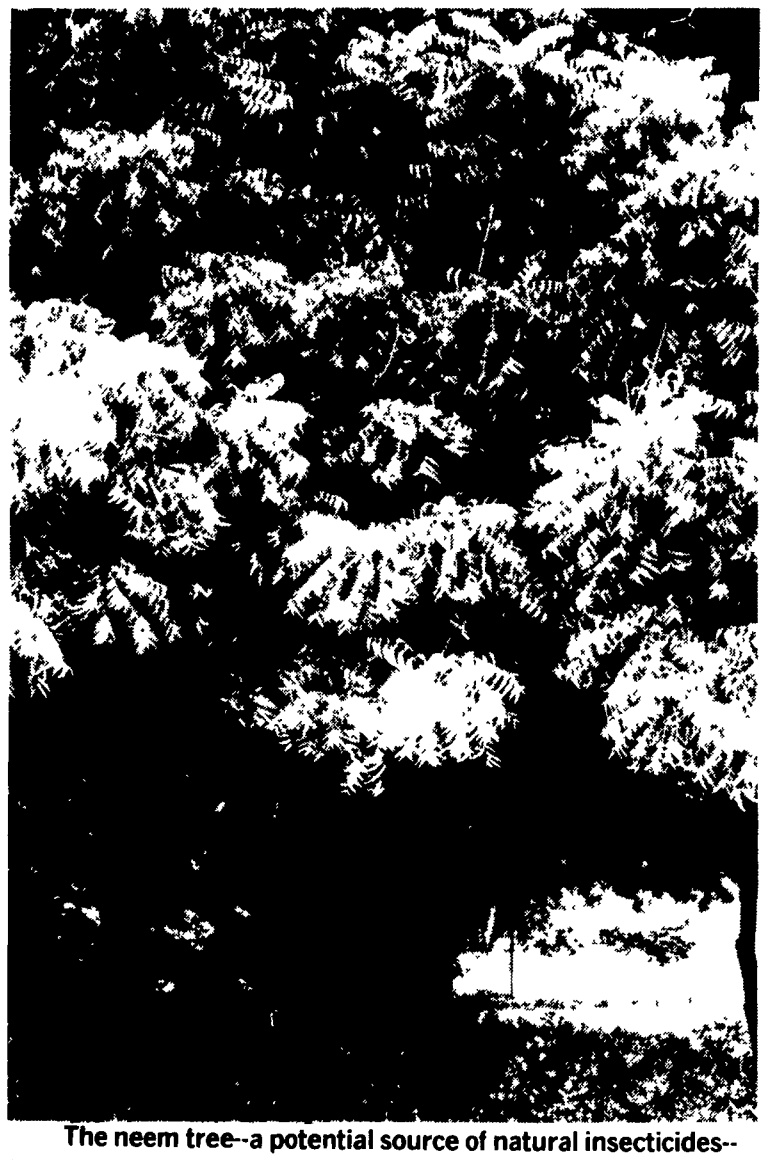
In Larew's experiments, a 'soil drench' of four percent neem extract controlled leafminers "just as well as the grower's best available insecticide" in tests on commercial chrysanthemum crops in Florida.

When added to soil, neem compounds enter roots and move into plant leaves, making plants poisonous to leafminer worms, Larew said. The compounds stop the life cycle of the worms by somehow jamming hormonal signals for molting. They get trapped within their own skins.

Neem trees are scarce in the continental United States, but thrive throughout the Caribbean and could do well in southern Florida and Hawaii, according to Robert J. Knight of the research agency's Subtropical Horticulture Research Laboratory at Miami, Fla.

About 50 neem trees are growing at USDA and other stations in southern Florida, Knight said. Over 200,000 have in recent years been planted in Haiti to beautify public roadsides.

Neem, because of its insecticidal properties and high quality oils, cold possibly be grown as a profitable crop by Caribbean farmers, he said.



The neem tree--a potential source of natural insecticides--is native to Asia and Africa.

In tropical Asia and Africa, neem trees are used for various purposes: the wood for timber, leaves as a medicine and animal feed, bark to tan goat skins, twigs for dental hygiene, and leaves, twigs and oilseed cakes as fertilizer.

Perhaps neem is most useful, though, for fighting insects, said Adler. In India, for example, ground neem seeds are commonly added to stored grain to keep out insects.

Among the 80 insect pests inhibited by neem extract in research are Mexican bean beetles, Colorado potato beetles, North American grasshoppers, California red scale, tobacco budworms, carpet beetles, striped cucumber beetles, confused flour beetles, milkweed bugs, citrus mealybugs and naval orangeworms.

Comment requested on USDA's proposed Sulfa plan

WASHINGTON – The U.S. Department of Agriculture is extending for 60 days the public comment period on its notice of intent to propose a program to control sulfa residues in swine.

"Ideas from all interested parties are essential to developing an effective program, so we are responding to requests to extend the comment period beyond the Aug. 30 deadline," said Donald L. Houston, administrator of USDA's Food Safety and Inspection Service. "The new deadline for comments is Oct. 29."

In the original notice, published May 20, USDA described a possible regulatory program that would include testing hogs at slaughter for sulfa residues. Because testing by USDA inspectors could delay slaughter operations and have a significant impact on the industry, the notice announced plans for a program, rather than the regulatory proposal itself, in order to allow for submission of revelant comments. The comments will be taken into account when USDA formulates the actual program proposal.

Public comments on the original notice of intent to propose a regulatory program may be submitted until Oct. 29 to: Food Safety and Inspection Service, Hearing Clerk, Room 3803 South Agriculture Bldg., USDA, Washington, D.C. 20250. Comments should be submitted in duplicate.

Experts talk to Bradford dairymen about milk protein

BY BARBARA MILLER
Staff Correspondent

TROY — Whether they like it or not, dairymen will soon be hearing a lot more about milk protein.

As an important factor in cheese production and, thus, the main object of "component pricing" systems, milk protein is drawing more attention in today's dairy economy, 125 milk producers were told last week at the Bradford County Dairy Days at the Troy Fairgrounds.

Interest in milk protein content has increased dramatically in recent years due to changes in milk pricing, according to Dr. Larry Chase, dairy nutritionist at Cornell University. As more of the total milk supply moves into manufacturing markets, especially cheese, he said payment systems combining fat, protein and somatic cells are being used.

In Wisconsin and Minnesota, Chase observed, protein pricing systems have been in operation for a number of years. As an example of how protein pricing works he used the following case of Wisconsin Dairies in Baraboo: A protein-base of 3.2 percent is used with 10 cents paid for each .1 unit above the base. Somatic cell counts higher than 501,000 received no premium, while counts from 301,000 to 500,000 received six cents per hundredweight, and somatic cell counts of less than 300,000 received 12 cents per hundredweight premium.

Chase noted local milk consumers such as Eastern Milk Producers and Leprino Foods are currently considering protein pricing.

Changes that have occurred in the dairy industry such as producing more milk per cow, feeding more grain, and feeding better quality forage, all have an impact on the amount of milk and protein levels, according to Chase.

However, he said there is less variation of protein levels across the five major dairy breeds than in fat levels. According to his figures there is a 1.33 spread in average fat levels across the breeds while only a .69 spread in average protein content.

Genetics, observed Chase, accounts for 55-60 percent of the variation in milk components. The remaining 40-45 percent is attributed to environmental factors which can be affected by management practices.

True protein (casein, lactalbumin and lactoglobulin) comprises about 95 percent of the total protein in milk, Chase reported. Casein protein, the major component utilized in cheese making, makes up about 80 percent of the true protein.

Dwight Brockway, administrative manager of Leprino Foods, Waverly, N.Y., noted that cheese handlers are mainly concerned with protein and butterfat levels.

"The main component contributing to yield is protein," he said. "Casein is the chemical or gridwork that chemically ties up fat and moisture that gives yield of cheese from milk."

Mozarella cheese, for example, is comprised of 18 percent fat and 27.5 percent casein, he said.

The ideal milk for cheese, according to Brockway, contains no bacterial inhibitors, undamaged butterfat, no added water, low bacteria count, good organoleptic quality (taste), continuous low temperature storage, low somatic cell count, and low age.

Brockway also noted that somatic cells adversely affect protein levels by breaking down protein and also by causing blood leakage. It is important for producers to have high protein levels, he said, and recommended improved feeding and breeding programs and good quality production and production procedures.

Environmental factors appear to have less effect on milk protein than they do on milk fat, Cornell's Chase observed. Highest milk protein contents are found in fall and winter seasons. Older cows tend to produce milk with a slightly lower milk protein content. Milk protein levels change throughout lactation. In the early stages there is a high protein content and then it drops toward the middle of the cycle. By the end of the lactation protein level tends to increase again.

Milk protein levels do not change dramatically as somatic cells increase, Chase said, but as somatic cells go up there is a decrease in the casein factor of the true protein. This lowers the value of the milk in terms of potential cheese yield. Somatic cells, of course, also reduce milk yield.

Nutrition, stated Chase, has less effect on protein than on fat. Increasing the energy intake of the cow's ration with such foods as hominy or corn has the most impact on raising the protein level of milk.

Feeding excess diet protein does not increase milk protein, according to Chase, since it is excreted through the urine. Additionally, feeding fine chopped, ground or pelleted forage may depress milk protein by .2 to .4 units. It also may depress milk fat.

Chase offered several recommendations for improving the protein level.

Select a sire for total product value (milk production, fat content, or protein content) depending upon for what you are being paid. Selection for milk yield alone will often lower milk protein content.

- Maintain a mastitis control program to minimize possible effects on milk composition. More importantly, mastitis results in decreased milk yield.
- Avoid having large number of cows calving in hot summer months.
- Provide shade or housing systems which moderate the detrimental effect on milk protein of high summer temperatures.
- Feed a balanced ration to meet nutritional and physical form requirements.
- Maximize ration energy content while meeting minimum fiber needs.
- Avoid using high levels of added fat or oil in the ration.
- Avoid finely chopped forages. Cuts of 3/8 inch or longer should be used for silages.
- Feed some forage before grain to minimize rumen PH and microbial fermentation changes. Strive to feed energy sources before protein sources to maximize dietary protein utilization.
- Monitor your rations by analyzing for protein, fiber and minerals.
- Determine the actual dry matter intake of your cows.
- Look at the forage which is not eaten. If it is all stems or cobs the actual fiber intake is less than calculated.

Cornell researchers aid North country farmers

ITHACA, NY — In the past 25 years, researchers and extension workers at Cornell University have helped northern New York to improve its agricultural enterprises. Research and extension activities are continuing in a number of new directions to make the area's agricultural base even stronger.

The six-county "North Country" region, located 250 miles north of New York City, is equal in size to Rhode Island and Vermont combined. It is a scenic area, containing the majestic Adirondack Mountains, thousands of mountain lakes and streams, and steep valleys, stretching from Lake Ontario to Lake Champlain.

Much of the agriculture in the region is located on flatlands and adjacent uplands surrounding the mountains. The physical features and the northern location produce climatic conditions that make crop farming unusually difficult. These factors aggravate the area's worst agricultural problem — fine textured soils that drain poorly.

Until a couple of decades ago, many North Country farmers were barely making a living. In fact, studies conducted by Cornell researchers in the 1950s showed that one-third of the dairy farmers, for example, made no return for their labor and management. In addition, large purchases of feed — because farmers couldn't grow enough of their own — narrowed their profit margin on milk.

Results of this and other studies helped launch a major effort by the New York State Legislature and farm organizations in the area to turn the North Country into a stronger agricultural base through research and extension. In 1961, the New York State Legislature appropriated funds for the New York State College of Agriculture and Life Sciences at Cornell to establish a research station and to initiate research programs for the area.

From the start, an important focus of the program was the wet soils, which affected 45 percent of the land in crops. Cornell agronomy professor Robert F. Lucey, who has headed the program since its inception, says: "Our major goal was to demonstrate to farmers that soil drainage, through the use of surface and subsurface drainage, would solve many of their problems."

Lucey, who is chairman of Cornell's Department of Agronomy, notes, "We established a surface-drainage demonstration project in one of the counties, Jefferson, and in the subsequent years carried out long-term demonstrations on surface and subsurface drainage in all six counties." Other counties in the region are Clinton, Essex, Franklin, Lewis, and St. Lawrence.

"Many farmers were initially reluctant to try the drainage systems," Lucey points out. "They and numerous other people in agriculture believe that although surface and tile drainage might be effective in draining the soil, the increases inc rop production wouldn't cover the cost of its installation."

Since the initial soil drainage demonstration project was begun, the rate of tile installation increased from 28,000 linear feet in 1959 to 1,300,000 feet in 1983.

The Cornell work not only eased farmers' concerns, but helped to produce some spectacular results:

- harvested cropland increased by more than 66,000 acres between 1969 and 1982;
- the value of the corn silage crop (based on $22 per ton) increased from less than $12 million in 1949 to almost $30 million in 1982;
- the value of the corn grain crop (based on $3 per bushel) increased

Valiant daughter brings high bid at Somerset Fall Classic

BY BETSY STITT
Staff Correspondent

SOMERSET — The annual Somerset Fall Classic was held Aug. 28, at th Somerset County Fairgrounds. The sale theme, "a touch of class," was evident as 40 quality animals were presented for bids to a good crowd.

Terry and Wanda Kuehn of Monroeville consigned the sale's high selling animal, Diamond-Cut Valiant Janelle. A three-year-old daughter of SWD Valiant, she was purchased by S and S Dairy, Somerset, for a bid of $2700.

Janelle is scored good plus and in her first lactation she produced 17,264 pounds of milk and 654 of fat. Her dam, Kuehns Elevation Justice, is scored Ex-91 and made a top record of 24,218 pounds of milk and 840 of fat as a six-year-old.

The Clark A. Yoder family consigned the second high selling animal, a six-year-old Marvex daughter. Claradale Marvex Beverly is scored VG-86 and had a top record of 23,604 pounds of milk and 1083 pounds of fat on her last completed lactation.

Beverly's dam is scored VG-88 and produced 21,440 pounds of milk and 760 of fat. Don and Cheryl Glesner of Berlin bought this strong, milky cow for $2300.

A bid of $2150 from Calvin Will, of North View Farm, bought the third high selling animal. Hillmont Elevation King Carol, consigned by Jay and Kirk Hillegass, is scored VG-88.

This five-year-old daughter of Maple-Willow Elevation King boasts a top record of 21,587 pounds of milk and 831 of fat.

Doug and Deb Hillegass bought the fourth high animal for $2100. Vonderbar Majic Dehlila-ET is a two-year-old daughter of Bendmead Majic of Lin-Con.

Dehlila's dam is scored 87 and had a top record of 30,910 of milk and 1116 of fat. The two-year-old was consigned by Kuehn Brothers of Monroeville.

Glenn Stoltzfus purchased Burket-Falls Ca-Lil Saffy-ET for $2050, the fifth high bid of the sale. Consigned by Fidelity Holsteins, Saffy is a five-year-old daughter of Ca-Lil Standout Cavalier.

The unofficial sale total, as announced at the sale, was $1592. Dan Carr, sale chairman, stated following the sale that, although numbers were down this year, the sale quality was up.

Also sold during the Somerset Fall Classic was a quilt made by Mrs. Paul Yoder of Oakland, Md. Mrs. Gerald Carr of Somerset purchased it for $280.

NFO urges support for benefit concert

CORNING, IA – The President of the National Farmers Organization is urging wide public support for the September 22 farm benefit concert being organized by Governor James R. Thompson of Illinois and country singer Willie Nelson.

"I want to commend them for taking the initiative in arranging a big musical event to help struggling farm families," DeVon Woodland said. "An event like this will focus nationwide attention on the rapidly deteriorating situation in agriculture and raise funds as well."

Woodland said he hopes all Americans will listen to what Nelson, John Conlee, and other performers say about the farm situation and that the public will support the concert and respond to the televised appeal for funds.

"All Americans need to know that family agriculture is being destroyed by prices that don't cover production costs, unfair competition from subsidized tax shelters, double digit interest rates, and plummeting land values," he said. "They need to know that a third of all midrange farms are in deep trouble and that these commercial size operations are the productive units that provide most of this country's abundance."

Equipment maintenance may prevent harvest loss

NEWARK, DE. – With today's depressed grain prices farmers will want to harvest every bushel possible. The harvest season is about to begin, but despite the best intentions, some producers won't be ready. Some may have forgotten to order equipment parts. Others may have overlooked essential repairs.

"The most important thing farmers can do now is get organized, so that when the crop is ready, they'll be ready too," says University of Delaware extension agricultural agent Dean Belt.

"Start by finding your operator's manual and giving your combine a thorough checkup and service if this hasn't been done," he says. "Make necessary repairs promptly. Do your best to be ready when the crop is. Don't be shut down making repairs when you should be in the field. There are enough unavoidable problems to face without those you could have taken care of earlier."

Once harvest is under way, don't overlook necessary daily maintenance. This could prevent major down-time later. Again, the operator's manual will be a big help.

Belt advises farmers to check frequently for lost grain in the field. Conditions change by the hour and some may affect harvest loss. "A few minutes spent checking the ground for grain could save you a lot of money," he says.

A 3 percent field loss, which is considered acceptable, means 4.2 bushels left on the ground in a 140-bushel-an-acre crop. Many farmers leave more than that.

"I can't stress enough the importance of checking frequently for lost grain, and then determining where it's coming from," the county agent says. "A little easy arithmetic will tell you what a 3, 4 or 5 percent loss will cost you in your operation."

On the average, two kernels per square foot equals a 1-bushel loss per acre. The Delaware Cooperative Extension Service has fact sheets that explain how to measure field loss for corn and soybeans. To obtain copies, contact the county extension office in Newark (451-2506), Dover (736-1448) or Georgetown (856-7303).

According to Belt, the most frequent causes of harvest grain loss are:

- Improper adjustment of the table; check it for proper adjustment of gathering chains and stripper plates. Considerable shelling or ear loss can occur here before the crop enters the combine.
- Improper adjustment of cylinder speeds, concaves, fan or sieves.
- Worn, poorly fitting plates which allow grain to spill out.
- A ground speed too fast for crop conditions.
- Prepare your combine now so you can harvest as much as possible of what you grew," Belt concludes. "You ought to harvest 97 percent of your grain, or better."

North country ag

from about $189,000 in 1949 to nearly $10 million in 1982;

• milk production jumped from 1.3 billion pounds from 220,523 cows in 1949 to 2 billion pounds produced by only 173,000 cows in 1982.

These outcomes were the result of putting additional acreage into production and from the adoption of more intensive farming methods.

As a model for other agricultural development programs, Robert A. Milligan, associate professor of agricultural economics and a participant in Cornell's North Country program, says that what should be noted is "how closely tailored the Cornell program is to the region."

"If you really want to help an area, you have to look at what's there — the people, land resources, climate — and design the program accordingly," he stresses.

Current research and Cornell Cooperative Extension efforts in the North Country include production trials comparing the performance of experimental varieties of red clover and birdsfoot trefoil; these forage crops can tolerate wet soil conditions. Other projects involve tile drainage to improve water management while reducing soil erosion.

Recently, a project on beef cattle marketing was added to the program. In just one year's time the market value of beef cattle on the farms participating in the program increased by $80 per head, a 28 percent jump from previous years.

Cornell scientists are stepping up work on several research fronts, assessing crop response to fluctuating water tables; a cultivation method called "ridge tillage" for corn production; quick-maturing corn varieties that can thrive in a short-season area under cool, wet conditions; high-protein forage varieties to reduce total consumption and costs; and production of seed-oil crops to diversify agricutlure in the North Country.

Writing in the latest issue of "New York's Food and Life Sciences Quarterly," a research publication of the New York State College of Agriculture and Life Sciences, Lucey and Milligan say that although much has been done to improve agricutlural productivity in the North Country, much still needs to be done for the region to realize its full agricultural potential.

"No area of the state is more economically dependent on agriculture than the North Country...even though the climate, soil conditions, and transportation to markets make farming more difficult here than in many other parts of the state," they point out.

NEDCO

"NEDCO was once a very successful bargaining cooperative," said federation President James Patsos. "It even made money."

And the organization is hoping its members will have patience as it struggles to regain that position.

The federation has scheduled a meeting with representatives of the member cooperatives Sept. 16, in order to assess the damage and determine if a continued role is possible.

Patsos points out that NEDCO can make a contribution, by providing important services for dairymen and co-ops.

"There's a need for the type of representation we can provide," he said. And because it has whittled down its staff and facilities, the federation can provide those services at low cost, he said.

Patsos noted that the individual dairymen and co-ops could well benefit from those services, especially if a return to solvency allows repayment of the losses sustained by dairymen.

Though Patsos said he did not know the amount of money owed to producers, published estimates have placed the figure at $18 million.

The federation has taken the somewhat unusual step of trying to protect producer funds by listing member co-ops as creditors in the bankruptcy proceedings.

In the past, courts have considered producers to be the owners of the co-op, and thus not able to be listed as creditors in the bankruptcy action.

The federation's major secured creditor, CITICORP, was paid in full with the proceeds from the sales of the Fultonville and Frazer facilities.

Bottling routes and accounts have been sold to Dairylea; the Fultonville property has been sold to Boston-based G.H. Enterprises, operator of Cumberland Farms dairy stores; and ownership of the Fraser plant has been transferred back to Dellwood Foods, Inc.

NEDCO expects to file a formal plan of reorganization within the next several weeks.

At the time its marketing members were released from the contractual obligations, the federation had 1,200 members.

How other countries deal with dairy surplus

Dairy Marketing

NEWARK, DE – The United States isn't the only country with milk surplus problems. England, France, Germany, Holland and other European countries have surpluses too. How do they cope?

"They treat excess milk like any other surplus," says University of Delaware extension dairy specialist Dr. George Haenlein. "Farmers who grow olives, for example, shake immature fruit from their trees to avoid surpluses by reducing tonnage. This practice also increases the quality and size of the remaining olives. Potato farmers divert large amounts of their crop into swine feed or vodka distillation to reduce surpluses and maintain farm income levels.

"For generations," continued Haenlein, "European farmers who produce Swiss cheese have voluntarily set themselves cheese tonnage limits, farm size limits, milk production per cow limits and grain feeding per cow limits. At the same time, they've concentrated on high quality standards, and vigorous, imaginative promotion efforts. Dutch cheese farmers do the same thing."

According to Haenlein, most milk in continental Europe comes not from the typical black and white dairy cows familiar to most Americans, but from some 50 million head of fawn and white dual purpose cattle. In some areas, these cattle are called Simmental; in other places they go by Fleckvieh, Abondance, Pie Rouge, Montbelliard and other names.

Instead of getting 18,000 pounds of milk per cow–a standard expectation in the U.S.–farmers who raise these cattle are happy to produce 14,000 pounds, but on mostly roughage and thus at a lower cash cost. Also, European cows average five to seven lactations, not two to three as is common in American dairy herds. So, European producers have more calves to sell–mostly for veal, which reduces surplus milk and generates good side income.

The average European fawn and white cow weighs 1,500 to 2,000 pounds, with good muscling and a much better carcass value than the typical lean American dairy cow. "These fawn and white breeds are excellent roughage converters. The[y] also raise them use supplementary cold season forages like brassicas and small grains, in addition to five or six annual grass cuttings, to produce milk at less cost than we do in the States," the dairy specialist says.

Even so, European producers are also plagued by milk surpluses. "A few years ago several countries tried paying dairy farmers an extra cash premium to send cows to the stockyards," Haenlein says. "That helped for a while. Now they're talking about milk pensions. Sounds like the early retirement plan the DuPont Company executed recently. And in essence, it is."

In England, for example, 1,460 dairy farmers signed up in 1984 to retire 63 million gallons of milk against a governmental milk pension of 63 cents per gallon, payable over five years.

In France, 30,000 dairy farmers signed up to retire 405 million gallons of milk against a governmental milk pension of 24 cents per gallon, payable over two years.

And in West Germany, 30,000 dairy farmers retired 216 million gallons of milk against a milk pension of $1.25 per gallon, payable over 10 years.

In Scotland, the objective was to reduce milk production by 15 percent through a mandatory quota. This was achieved by a 15 to 20 percent reduction in purchased concentrates and a 5 percent cutback in cow numbers. As a result, some 130 Scottish dairy farmers reduced their output by a total of 8 million gallons of milk.

"Milk pensioning is an interesting concept," Haenlein says, "especially when it's coupled with aggressive advertising of milk and milk products."

In Scotland, he says, sales of low-fat milk--especially those processed by UHT (ultra high temperatures)--increased more than sales of any other dairy product last year to capture a 12 percent share of the total liquid milk market. Milk cartons are labeled "low fat milk for slimmers" or "trim milk–skimmed milk for slimmers" with a bikini-clad beauty on the carton and a "luxurious beach towel" give-away coupon, among other enticements.

"Could U.S. dairy farmers manage some kind of milk pension?" Haenlein wonders. "Perhaps they could, in the form of self-regulation to bring supply and demand into balance, with the ultimate goal of achieving more net income on American dairy farms."

The Dairy Business

By Newton Bair

ECONOMIC LITERACY

From what we read in the farm press about farmers' financial difficulties, one gets the distinct impression that most farmers must be nearly illiterate about economics - at least the kind of economic rules that big business thrives on.

Now, government economics are a different set of laws from those that operate for big business. (Government can create it's own money supply without ever creating real wealth.) And there are some economic laws that seem to apply only to agriculture.

Is it any wonder that we are confused about the mishmash of so-called "laws" that regulate our financial affairs?

It is pretty easy to assume that agriculture should use the same economic tools that any other business uses. Tools such as double-entry bookkeeping, accrual instead of cash accounting, inventory controls, lines of credit, and hired full-time pencil pushers. The assumption is correct, up to a point. And many successful farmers are using most or all of them.

The most progressive ones also have all those tools backed up on a modern computer. But there are some other laws of economics that are unique to agriculture.

What all farmers know, but some economists tend to forget, is that agriculture operates on a biological economy in addition to an industrialized one. A politico-industrial economy revolves around the elusive and symbolic stuff we call money. Money exists only on paper, and has no value in itself, yet it can be made to represent any commodity we wish. The unique thing about money is its flexibility. It is so easily exchanged between friends, competitors or nations that almost everything we value at all can be given a price tag in terms of dollars. Even our agricultural produce.

But a stalk of alfalfa or a milk cow does not know the difference between 3-percent interest and 18-percent interest! They grow and ruminate at their own established rate, regardless of the rest of the economy, and little can be done to hasten or slow that rate, short of complete termination.

This little difference between the economic structure of agriculture and industry could be the root of our farm financial problems. In spite of all of our technical advances, we are still at the mercy of a too bountiful nature, at least here in the United States. Even when we already have produced too much, the grass keeps growing, the heifers and sows keep breeding, and the cows keep right on milking. If only those dratted economic laws would quit interfering with our will and right to produce! If we could only forget about money!

All of us are getting more attuned to the necessary tools of modern business economics. The Internal Revenue Service has forced much of it on us, so we all have calculators, know how to calculate interest, write checks, and work out depreciation schedules. Some of us even use computers, work with complicated spreadsheets, and write our own investment software. But too many still lack either the intuition or the acquired skills that tie together the biological with the purely business end of economics. It requires both training and common sense.

The idea that farms must get bigger to be efficient may need another look. The economics that are credited to large scale farms may not be as important as we sometimes think. Many of the basic economic rules can be attached to small farms as well as large ones.

For example, borrowing can be kept at a minimum if one keeps a conservative perspective. Heavy debt can crush an otherwise viable farm operation. Fewer acres and a few less cows, with better attention to details can produce more profit than large numbers. Supporting local community business and neighborly cooperation is still a workable and worthy practice. Neighbors have always been one of a farmer's greatest assets, whether it is in helping out in harvest, building a new barn, or visiting over the back fence.

Agricultural economics is a complicated mix of business, political, and biological rules, that should be studied, pondered, and practiced with diligence. But none of them can be ignored, if farming is to be a successful venture.

Ag computer sales expected to jump

LAKE GENEVA, WI – "The sale of computers to farmers and agri-business will take off," Dave Wolf, computer products manager at Sperry New Holland, told a conference sponsored by the Association of Agricultural Computing Companies (AACC) here recently.

"Our research at Sperry New Holland shows that about 7-9 percent of farmers now own computers. About 30,000 were sold last year–a significant number," says Wolf. "The adoption curve for computers in agriculture is fairly typical. The industry is in the early adoption stage now, and Sperry New Holland is looking for the majority to adopt computer technology soon. That means 200,000 to 300,000 systems could be sold in agriculture during the next two to three years."

Sperry New Holland markets agricultural computer systems through AG-COMMAND™ Computer Centers which provide computers, software, training service and support to farmers and businesses, according to Wolf.

"Today, producers must go to their lenders with good cash flow statements before they'll get their loans approved. Computers and software can help farmers make more profitable decisions and do more efficient business planning," explains Wolf.

He continues, "Successful ag computer dealers will offer a complete package so a farmer can go home and use the system from the start. And we see our dealers answering the needs of the marketplace. They are a one-stop center for all ag computing needs."

Sperry New Holland entered the ag computer business one year ago. They currently have 55 dealers selling and providing support for their full line of Sperry computers and the AG-COMMAND™ Software Series, specifically developed for farmers. Sperry New Holland is the first and only major agricultural equipment company to enter the ag computer arena.

"We have unique capabilities to serve farmers," says Wolf. "Sperry New Holland has 90 years' experience serving the ag market and our parent company, Sperry Corporation, really started the computer industry.

"Also, our dealers are already located in places where other computer dealers often can't afford to invest–smaller, rural communities. Sperry New Holland dealers know the ag market and know the customers because that's their business," he points out.

According to Wolf, only specifically trained dealers who have at least one full time computer systems specialist sell the AG-COMMAND Computer System. They are supported by full-time Sperry New Holland branch computer marketing managers who work directly with the dealers' computer systems specialists.

Besides computers, peripherals and software programs, the AG-COMMAND Computer Centers carry supplies and computer furniture.

Sperry New Holland's AG-COMMAND Computer Centers are selling computer systems to farmers, ag oriented businesses and other businesses in rural communities, according to Wolf. "Our dealers have a full line of educational and business software to serve these customers," he notes.

Sperry New Holland has been researching the ag computer market for six years. The company's surveys indicate a large number of farmers intend to buy computer systems in the next year.

Of those who intend to buy, two-thirds have some computer experience and more than 90 percent already keep records. "That's a good indicator that the market potential to sell computers to agriculture is in good shape," comments the computer products manager.

"We also asked farmers about the type of dealer they will buy from. We got a very strong response that farmers want a dealer who can answer questions about the use of the computer with their farming operation. They want a dealer to offer training and help the new customer get up and running on a system. Ag Computer dealers must be able to handle this situation if they want to successfully serve the ag market," Wolf concludes.

Killer bees carried mites into upstate New York

ITHACA, NY. — When some honey bees from Brazil, inappropriately dubbed "killer" bees, escaped from a ship in upstate New York last year, they were carrying deadly mites. Although the bees have since died, Cornell University scientists are conducting an intensive bee hunt to determine whether any New York colonies have become infested with the dreaded Asian bee mite.

The nasty bees themselves are not the object of the pursuit since only worker bees escaped and they are unable to produce any young.

It's the deadly mites they carry that are a potential menace to the honey bees of our nation and that's a threat to the nation's honey crop and more than 50 crops dependent on insect pollination, of which honey bees are the most efficient, says a Cornell entomologist, one of the nation's leading bee experts.

About a year ago, a freighter from Brazil docked in Oswego, New York, and a colony of Africanized bees, sometimes called "killer" bees because of their aggressive behavior, was discovered thriving on board. Although the colony and the queen were destroyed, it is feared that several bees may have escaped.

Cornell scientists are trying to determine if any of those bees jumped ship and carried the bloodthirsty Asian bee mite, Varroa jacobsoni, to the mainland. The scientists are combing a one-mile radius of the Lake Ontario port, trying to capture every single honey bee colony in search of Africanized bees and bee mites.

Within the one-mile radius, rewards for honey bee colonies are being offered, and Cornell scientists are tracking down colonies by chasing honey bees as they make "bee lines" for home.

"We do not consider the escape of the Africanized bees themselves to be any threat at all," stresses Roger Morse, director of the Dyce Laboratory for Honey Bee Studies in the New York State College of Agriculture and Life Sciences at Cornell. "Our objective is to determine whether the Africanized bees made it to any honey bee colonies and contaminated them with the deadly Varroa mites."

In fact, so-called "killer" bees are not anything of the sort, Morse is quick to point out. "They are certainly nasty little bees but they are greatly misunderstood," says the Cornell expert, one of a few scientists in the nation with a great deal of experience with Africanized bees.

When African bees were transported to Brazil in 1956 for a research project, some escaped. Being more dominant than the gentler native bees, they eventually "conquered" the queens, thereby "Africanizing" the bee population. Bees in South America came to be known, therefore, as Africanized bees.

Although such bees are as efficient pollinators as the European bees that inhabit the U.S., they are often more fierce. Yet, they look the same and their stings are no more venomous.

"In fact, the only way we can tell the difference is by their size: Africanized bees are about 10 percent smaller," Morse explains.

In the trophies, these bees have picked up the slanderous nickname "killer bees" because they are easily aroused and sting with only a little provocation. The Africanized bees also swarm about twice as frequently as European bees, thus they are able to reproduce and colonize new territory rapidly.

It's estimated that the Africanized bees are migrating north from Central America at about 200 miles a year. They are predicted to enter the U.S. in large numbers by 1990.

"Their invasion of the U.S. is inevitable, yet I am not in the least worried about them being here, except for the mites they carry and the fear that so many people have of them," says Morse, a member of the National Advisory Committee of Bee Affairs for the Animal Plant Health Inspection Service (APHIS) of the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

APHIS is conducting surveys throughout the nation to hunt down any Africanized bees or Varroa bee mites. Morse's work in Oswego has been in cooperation with APHIS officials.

Morse suspects that Africanized bees in temperate climates will prove to be much less vicious than they are in tropical areas. In Argentina, for example, where the climate is similar to that of the U.S., Africanized bees are hardly more aggressive than European bees and the Argentinians have not reported problems associated with them. In South Africa, where the bees come from, there also are no reported problems. In tropical Brazil, the bees are undoubtedly easier to anger and quicker to sting. Yet beekeepers have learned to manage their hives very successfully, Morse points out.

"Evidently, the closer the bees are to the equator, the more ferocious they act," Morse observes.

There also is some evidence that suggests that "killer" bees would not survive a winter very well.

The imminent threat, therefore, is the Asian bee mite. Evidently, the mites are not deadly to the Africanized bees but could cripple and deform honey bees in the U.S. by feeding on bee pupae, sucking blood from between adult bee segments, and by attacking drone bees that fertilize queen bees.

Thus far, the Cornell scientists have not yet found any Africanized bees or Asian bee mites in the hives that they have examined from Oswego, but they will continue to monitor the area for the rest of the summer. APHIS probably will follow up by surveying the five-mile radius of the port for another five years.

"A potential problem of this magnitude must be taken very seriously," Morse warns. "These mites have already caused extensive honey bee colony deaths in more than 35 nations, including countries in Europe, Asia, South America, and Africa. It is probably inevitable that they will make it to the U.S."

Morse stresses, therefore, that it is essential to learn how to cope with these pests. Cornell is the only institution concentrating research on the deadly mite.

Morse and his graduate students not only are surveying the Oswego area and examining the honey bees that are found, but also are releasing marked bees at the port to determine if bees new to an area can find colonies. About 5,000 bees were released at varying distances from known counties. Only five bees found hives and they were very close–only 25 yards away.

"This tells us that lost bees do not have a great ability to find a colony unless it is very close," Morse observes.

Members of his group, both at Cornell and in Brazil, also are studying the biology and control of the mite, trying to come up with a miticide that will exterminate the mite without harming honey bees or leaving a harmful residue.

"The spread of the Varroa jacobsoni bee mite is just one example of how increased air and sea traffic around the globe is spreading pests and diseases around the planet at a horrendous rate. As a result, American agriculture is continually being threatened," Morse concludes.

USDA sets up network to aid export marketing

WASHINGTON – U.S. agricutural exporters sold $400 million worth of agricultural products overseas last year through a new marketing network operated by the Foreign Agricultural Service of the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

The Agricultural Information and Marketing Services program–known as AIMS–give U.S. food and agricultural exporters timely international marketing information, including specifics on the latest export opportunities overseas.

"We are using an impressive array of satellites and high-speed computers to link America's food exporters and major foreign importers," said Richard A. Smith, administrator of the Foreign Agricultural Service. "Hours after foreign importers notify one of USDA's 80 overseas offices of their international purchasing needs, details on export opportunities are made available electronically to U.S. companies through their personal computers," Smith said. For those who do not have personal computers, the information is also available by mail.

"To succeed in the increasingly competitive international marketplace, U.S. companies must take a more active, more aggressive stance in uncovering and pursuing international trade opportunities," said Smith. "AIMS is part of that effort."

AIMS offers five different export information services. "While each is different in its approach," notes Smith, "all are designed to assist U.S. companies in introducing their agricultural products to new overseas markets as well as expanding their present markets."

AIMS' Foreign Trade Leads Service has sparked the greatest interest among U.S. exporters. Using the latest in communications technology, USDA agricultural counselors, attaches and trade officers stationed overseas can forward electronically the specific import needs of thousands of foreign traders, wholesalers, distributors and agents to AIMS headquarters in Washington. Last year, more than 5,500 foreign trade leads were processed this way. Registered U.S. companies receive these trade leads in three ways, which vary only in the timeliness of receipt: personal computer, daily computerized direct mail, and the weekly bulletin, "Export Briefs."

The Buyer Alert Program is the newest service offered by AIMS and is rapidly becoming one of the most popular. It is similar to the Trade Lead Service, except that the trade information flows in the opposite direction--from U.S. exporters to foreign importers.

Again using high-speed telecommunications links, AIMS forwards actual export offers of U.S. companies to overseas buyers every Wednesday. This Buyer Alert Bulletin, as the listing is called, is now distributed in 12 major markets in the Far East, Western Europe, the Middle East, Canada and Mexico. To participate, U.S. exporters must supply AIMS with specific sales and product information, along with each product's export price.

The AIMS Computer-Based File System can match the worldwide product interest of U.S. companies with those of foreign firms that have identified themselves as prospective buyers of specific agricultural products. The importing interests of over 12,000 foreign buyers are contained in these computer piles and can quickly be made available to interested U.S. exporters.

The AIMS monthly newsletter, "Contacts for U.S. Agricultural Products," also assists U.S. firms by advertising their food and agriculture products in foreign markets. "Contacts" is sent to FAS agricultural counselors, attaches, and trade officers for distribution to prospective foreign buyers. Translated into Japanese, Spanish, French, Italian and Greek, "Contacts" is mailed to tens of thousands of buyers worldwide and is considered a major source of market information for foreign importers seeking new U.S. products.

The International Marketing Profiles Series combines detailed statistical information on agricultural trade with address lists of foreign buyers seeking various food products on world markets. These marketing profiles are classified according to product and country. Product Marketing Profiles examine world trade performance of specific agricultural industries. Country Marketing Profiles examine a country's total agricultural trade, including a product-by-product analysis.

These marketing profiles quickly help a U.S. company determine whether its food products have export potential and, if so, identify the markets that are the most promising for development.

Today, exporters need current market information more than ever. "We are facing a tremendous level of competition in world trade today," said Smith. "As exporters plan their marketing strategies to meet this competition, market research and export planning become crucial elements to their success. We are enthusiastic about AIMS' potential. Its services can be of major assistance to U.S. exporters–large and small alike."

Computer use on farms

AMES, IA – Anyone who is interested in using a microcomputer in agricultural operations will benefit from Microcomputers on the Farm: Getting Started, just published by the Iowa State University Press. This new book presents all the information needed to begin a successful microcomputer operation on a farm.

A step-by-step approach is used to teach how computers work, how farmers and ranchers use them, and how to choose the right software and hardware. In this guide authors Duane E. Erickson, Royce A. Hinton, and Ronald D. Szoke include the experiences of farm microcomputer owners as well as information on data that is available from other computers and how to gain access to it.

Also included is a comprehensive glossary of microcomputer terms and an evaluation checklist to use when comparing and purchasing hardware.

Duane E. Erickson is professor of agricultural economics and farm management, University of Illinois, and extension specialist in farm management with the University's Cooperative Extension Service.

Royce A. Hinton is professor of farm management, University of Illinois, and extension specialist in farm management, Cooperative Extension Service.

Ronald D. Szoke is research programmer and user training coordinator, Computing Services Office, also of the University of Illinois.

Summer's done... and the prize money's in the bank

BY BARB RADER
Staff Correspondent

BUTLER — Haymaking and combining are coming to an end. Garden canning and the county fairs are winding down.

And while their parents are deeply involved with fall harvesting, farm kids have returned to school, their hearts, if not their heads, still back on the ballfield or down at the swimming hole.

More than just a few of these youngsters have an added distraction . . their memories of recent successes at county ag fairs.

Amber Leslie

A good example is 10-year-old Amber Leslie, daughter of Lloyd and Marlene Leslie of Connoquenessing Her summer was spent readying her various entries for competition.

By all odds, she spent her time well. Her Suffolk lamb not only won the county roundup held at the Butler Farm Show, but it also brought a phenomenal $7 a pound at sale.

Following that successful bid, Amber brushed up for her academic endeavors by doing some quick figuring to determine how much her 108-pound entry would earn.

"Mom, can you believe it," she said to her mother, "that's $756! That's a lot of money."

What's more, the second-year 4-Her also won prizes for other entries, including Suffolk and Shropshire sheep, market hogs, and Holstein and Jersey calves.

So what does a 10-year-old ag entrepreneur do with a bankroll of $700-plus?

Right now, says Amber, most of it is in the bank, either as savings for further education or as "seed money" to purchase breeding stock for additional conquests on the county fair circuit next year Butler 4-Hers, look out!

The Graham brothers

Joel, 9, and Ryan Graham, 10, sons of Norman and Stella Graham, have their own memories of the Summer of 1985.

Talented in the finer as well as the agricultural arts, their winnings earned the Grahams the coveted "Family Bowl" award presented each year by the Butler Eagle to the farm family racking up the most points in the Butler Farm Show.

Older brother Ryan, now in his third year of 4-H, saw his intermediate yearling Holstein capture both the 4-H and open shows. And his pastel picture, a rendering of a news clipping depicting him and his calf from last year, also won an art award.

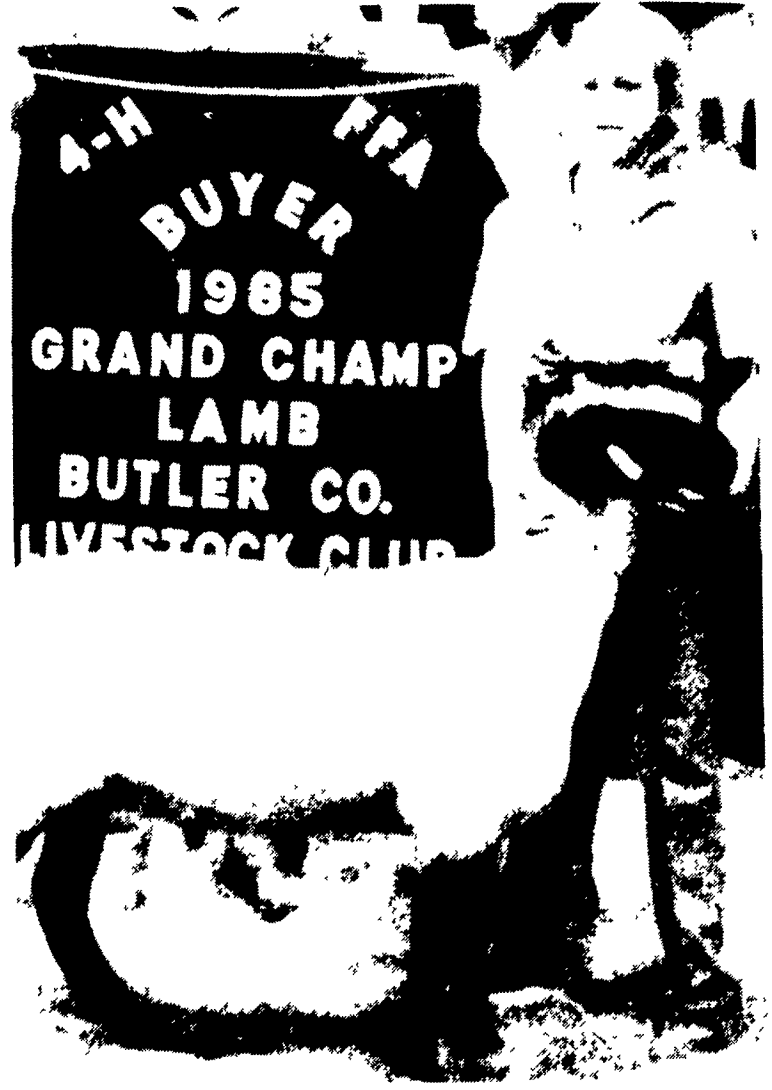
Ryan also racked up points for another Holstein, and his squash and vegetable entries.

Younger bother Joel, in his first year in 4-H, gave his brother some competition, and, maybe some cause for concern about next year.

His pastel drawing of a mouse in a decorated Christmas tree earned him a second-place ribbon, while his Holstein calf earned a second in the 4-H competition and a third in the open show.

Both of the Graham brothers have banked their winnings for college. Joel says he'd like to be an artist.

And Ryan has made no career commitments as yet, preferring the short-term pleasures of going to shows — and winning ribbons.



Amber Leslie and her Butler County Grand Champion market lamb.

"I just like to show and have a good time," he says

John Kennedy

Already a show veteran at 13, John Kennedy also had quite a summer. The son of well known Brown Swiss breeders James and Rita Kennedy of Butler, John in the past has won 4-H awards for a variety of projects, including dairy, market swine, and farm products.

In addition to his ribbons, John also earned money from his Grand Champion market hog. He'll save some of the money for further education . . . but some will be used to purchase 4-H market hogs for next year's competition. And maybe even a Brown Swiss or two.

For all the hard-working 4-H competitors, whether they won that championship ribbon or not, their memories will some day be more important than the ribbons or the money. Perhaps not right away.

But their 4-H scrapbooks, their faded ribbons, their yellowed newspaper clippings may someday be the momentos that remind them of summers well spent. . . hard, earnest toil . . . and a life rich in simple pleasures.

It may enable them to understand the plight of future farmers, and appreciate the hard work that goes into every serving of meat, glass of milk or vegetable salad.

And, if past experience is any guide, it will help them cheer louder, clap longer and smile brighter when a son or daughter wins the blue ribbon they won — or maybe didn't win — three decades before.

On being a farm wife - And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

The feeling of rejection is hanging about my head.

No neighbor seems interested. My aunt — rumor had it that she might be in need — turned me down. Even my own mother graciously refuses my offer.

Thus, in my hour of need, once dependable relatives, friends and neighbors decline the glorious opportunity to become recipients in my annual Great Tomato Giveaway.

Their extreme reluctance and reasons of refusal suggest that one more tomato in their possession would be about as welcome as the copied chain letter that turned up here in my mail a couple of days ago. Alas, I neglected to send on twenty copies to receive my showering of good luck. My guess is the punishment for this travesty is the abundance with which the tomatoes merrily keep bearing fruit.

Such a shame. Here's a commodity that in late June and early July is eagerly sought after, tenderly watched, carefully cultivated and watered with loving concern. Yet, by late August, mention the word "tomato" and your best friend turns instantly distant and disinterested.

Having already pawned off a couple of five-gallon buckets-worth onto a few takers, and faced with a burgeoning bumper harvest, I seize upon even the slightest whisper of some soul who might, just might, be conned into taking more.

Not that all this maneuvering doesn't pour a heap of guilt down on my conscience. My history, my heritage, my inner self lectures that "waste not, want not," and I should therefore be jarring up every one of those little, juicy, red rascals.

And, since I genuinely do enjoy the sensation, the self-satisfaction, the sort of smugness that comes from squirreling away goodies against next February's inevitable blizzard blasts, I scalded, skinned, chopped, boiled and canned a good-sized batch of tomatoes just last week.

Further warm feelings of self worth asserted themselves as I joyously listened to every single lid snap shut with a satisfying, pinging sound.

It was the following morning, when I carried the shipment of glowing jars of August accomplishments downstairs to the basement shelves that I seriously questioned just what I'd been trying to prove.

A host of at least 50 jars of unused tomatoes from last year's bounty all waved a welcome in unison.

Uh, anyone out there need any tomatoes?

Montgomery County 4-H Fair winners named

CREAMERY — Exhibiting at the recent Montgomery County 4-H Fair brought top honors to numerous 4-H members.

Ryan Moyer, Harleysville, won a champion-in-class ribbon for his vegetable exhibit. A similar award went to Danielle Breaux, Salfordville, for her container growing project. In the woodworking category Tricia McMahon, Green Lane, took grand champion, while reserve champion went to Todd Becker, Norristown.

The Trappe 4-H Community Club had a number of entries in the handyman project. Henry Wojton, Trappe, constructed a wooden filing cabinet with a built-in bookshelf which won a champion-in-class award. Trappe also won with its club scrapbook entry.

Among the Salford 4-H Community Club winners of a champion-in-class ribbon were Andrew Canale, Gilbertsville, in rocketry; Pat Canale, Gilbertsville, in model building; Keith Friel, Gilbertsville; in electricity; and John Canale, Gilbertsville, with photography.

Not owning a horse does not prevent boys and girls from joining Hoofprints, a county-wide horseless horse club. Among the winning entries were exhibits created by Amy Wolfgang, Gilbertsville, who had grand champion, and Danielle Breaux, Salfordville, a reserve champion winner.

The self-determining project allows the 4-H member to design an activity and set goals towards completion of that activity. A champion-in-class ribbon went to the display of David Stauffer, Lansdale, a member of the Seeing Eye Puppy Club.

A little-known chemical increases the life of cut flowers by suppressing a hormone responsible for aging in plants, U.S. Department of Agriculture researchers said recently.

Horticulturalist Chien Y. Wang and plant physiologist James E. Baker found that the chemical, aminooxyacetic acid, acts as a "fountain of youth" for flowers after they are cut by preventing a plant's production of ethylene, a hormone that starts the ripening and aging of flowers, fruits and vegetables.

The researchers uncovered the chemical's preserving action in laboratory studies at the Beltsville, Md., research center of USDA's Agricultural Research Service.

Tests of carnations showed that AOAA tripled the number of days after cutting that flowers stayed fresh and attractive, compared to leaving the cut plants only in water. And, when added to commercial preservatives it doubled the time that preservatives kept the cut plants fresh.

"Flowers are very sensitive to ethylene," Wang said. He cautioned that all cut flowers that are together need to be treated with AOAA. Otherwise they will put ethylene into the air. Once airborne, ethylene triggers the aging of all nearby cut flowers, even treated ones.

Currently, AOAA is available only to industry and research organizations, according to the scientists. Federal approval of the chemical is needed before it will be available to florists.

The new floral preservative is the second compound that Wang and other scientists have discovered to stop ethylene production. The first was AVG, or aminoethoxyvinylglycine, which works the same way AOAA does to preserve flowers.

However, Wang said, "AOAA is twenty times cheaper to use than AVG."

Lettuce
8 slices thinly sliced corned beef
6 thin slices dill pickle
3 slices Brick or Muenster cheese
Chopped green onion, optional

Spread bread with mustard; arrange lettuce. Place 4 slices corned beef on each slice of bread; top with 3 pickle slices. Cut cheese slices in half diagonally. Top each sandwich with 3 cheese triangles. Sprinkle on onion, if desired. Wrap in plastic wrap. Can also be made as a closed sandwich.

REAL TEXAS CHILI

3 pounds of boneless chuck, cut into 1-inch cubes
2 teaspoons vegetable oil
2 to 3 cloves of chopped garlic
4 to 6 tablespoons of chili powder
2 teaspoons ground cumin
3 tablespoons flour
1 tablespoon leaf oregano
2 13¾-ounce cans of beef broth
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
1 15-ounce can of pinto beans, optional
1 cup sour cream, optional
1 lime, cut in wedges, optional

Heat oil in a 4-quart kettle or heavy-bottomed pan over medium heat. Add beef, stirring frequently with a wooden spoon until meat changes color but does not brown. Lower heat; stir in garlic. Combine chili powder, cumin and flour. Sprinkle meat with chili mixture, stirring until meat is evenly coated. Crumble oregano over meat. Add 1½ cans of the broth and stir until liquid is well-blended. Add salt and pepper. Bring to a boil, stirring occasionally. Add remaining broth, cook 30 minutes longer or until meat is almost falling apart. Cool thoroughly. Cover and refrigerate overnight to ripen the flavor. Reheat chili in top of double boiler placed over boiling water. Heat beans, drain and add to chili, if desired. Garnish chili with sour cream and add wedges of lime to squeeze over each portion. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Dont's overschedule your child; he needs free time too

NEWARK, Del. — For many workers who punch a time clock all year round, the freedom of childhood summers is in idyllic memory. But for today's youth, such carefree summers may be a vanishing reality. According to University of Delaware extension home economist Roxane Whittaker, summer activities increasingly leave even young children with little unstructured time.

Whittaker notes that the contemporary emphasis on achievement–the drive to succeed--often leads parents and children to choose summer activities geared toward self improvement. "Children have opportunities to participate in a wide range of valuable learning experiences which improve skills, increase social interactions, and broaden horizons," she says. In addition to traditional summer camps, there are camps specializing in almost everything–sports, music, even computers!

Children accustomed to the fast pace of school and extra-curricular life, as well as constant bombardment by mass media–may find it hard to slow down and draw on their own resources during the summer. Both kids and parents often avoid the "What shall I do next?" syndrome by engaging in a constant round of baseball or soccer leagues, music lessons, tennis and swimming lessons, camps, field trips, summer courses, fairs, vacation trips and–as early as possible–jobs.

"All these experiences are good," Whittaker says, "but they require a commitment of time, not to mention money, and adherence to a schedule. They can leave little time for relaxation from the normal ratrace of juggling schedules, transportation, staggered meals--breaks that everyone in the family needs."

Besides, with too much structured activity, kids miss chances for spontaneous fun. Stopping to smell the roses is more conducive to exploration and discovery than rushing off to another educational activity.

Of course, the growing number of households in which both parents work away from the home makes supervision of children a problem in the summer. Many parents rely on school or day care year round.

University of Delaware family and child development specialist Dr. Patricia Tanner Nelson says that children eight years old and under are in some ways the easiest to provide for. They must have supervision in a babysitting, day care or day camp situation, and many programs are available. In some cases there may be no suitable arrangement for older children other than all-day organized activities, but if possible, these should be combined with less formal supervision.

One possibility is for children to spend part of each day at a park and recreation program or day camp, then perhaps visit friends at their homes, or at play monitored periodically by an adult. Nelson suggests that neighbors and friends could share such responsibilities. In return, working parents could offer their service for occasional evening activities.

Another suggestion is for children to be cared for by senior citizens. Many elderly people would enjoy the company, as well as the chance to feel useful. Children could be encouraged to view the arrangement as a good deed, perhaps like adopting a grandparent, rather than as babysitting.

For children who are at home during the day, Nelson recommends providing a list of indoor activities such as books, puzzles and games for rainy days. She also heartily endorses assigning youngsters routine household or yard chores.

Whittaker points out that teaching children to balance scheduled commitments with free time helps them learn to handle stress as adults by setting aside opportunities to refresh and recharge themselves. "That's time well spent," she says.

Yemen is fourth export target

WASHINGTON — Secretary of Agriculture John R. Block has announced that a wheat flour offer to Yemen will be the fourth initiative under the U.S. Department of Agriculture's $2-billion export enhancement program.

Block said the initiative will give U.S. exporters the opportunity to sell up to 50,000 metric tons of wheat flour, including a Commodity Credit Corporation (CCC) bonus in the form of wheat to be provided to U.S. exporters from CCC stocks. The CCC bonus will enable U.S. exporters to compete at commercial prices in the Yemen Arab Republic market in response to future tenders for wheat flour.

Previously announced credit guarantees under the Export Credit Guarantee Program (GSM-102) are available for use in conjunction with the Export Enhancement Program for the Yemen Arab Republic.

This initiative meets the program criteria in that it will increase exports of U.S. wheat flour and is targeted at the market that is characterized by unfair trade practices by subsidizing countries, Block said.

The announcement and invitation for offers from exporters will be issued by the CCC's Kansas City Commodity Office in Kansas City, MO.

Desert stress affects even king of the beasts

What could cause lions–the most social of the wild cats–to leave their prides and become loners?

The desert.

With its bleak landscape and months without rain, the African dessert creates such stress that even the king of beasts changes its behavior, according to "International Wildlife," a bimonthly publication of the National Wildlife Federation.

Wildlife biologists Mark and Delia Owens spent seven years studying lions in the Central Kalahari Desert of Botswana, one of the largest, most remote wilderness areas left in Africa. Studying the lions and living in a ,000-square-mile area with no oads and no other people, the)wens found that under the stress aused by drought, lion society reaks down, prides fall apart and ew social groups are formed.

Dry seasons, with no rain at all, ast up to nine months. The soil is oorer and the grasslands less roductive than the Serengenti lains of Tanzania, Africa's other eat lion habitat.

"This bleak landscape and manding climate often push the g cats to their limits," the thors write. "In order to survive e dry season, they change their havior. Prides fracture into bgroups and leave their territories to pursue smaller, more elusive prey."

In the Serengenti Plains, prides are made of female relatives–grandmothers, mothers, sisters and their offspring–as well as any attending adult males. These family members hunt together, rear their young together, groom one another, and jointly defend a permanent territory. Strange females seldom, if ever, are allowed to join the group.

The Kalahari lions studied by Mark and Delia Owens behaved like those in the Serengenti during the summer rainy season, but when the rains failed, "some drastic social changes were demanded of the lions, changes that caused the very foundations of desert lion society to crumble."

The "family" pride, portrayed as the foundation of lion society, disintegrated in the desert. The prides, finding it increasingly difficult to kill enough large prey to meet their collective need for moisture and food, were forced to split into smaller and smaller subgroups. They abandoned their territory, and began hunting in twos, rather than groups of five or six. They roamed areas as much as 15 times larger than their rainy season ranges; they were forced to

PRICE ROLLBACK!

RACINE, WISCONSIN 8/10/85... J I Case has rolled back prices on most Case International 94 Series two-wheel-drive agricultural tractors. The rollback results from ongoing cost reduction efforts in Case manufacturing operations.

The price reductions, now in effect, apply to new identity Case International tractors only. The rollback varies by model up to 8.7%, and applies to tractors marketed in the United States.

Case announced similar price rollbacks for Case International four-wheel-drive agricultural tractors and Case construction equipment in March.

J I Case said the price move is a positive response to current economic difficulties in the agricultural marketplace. "The rollback allows us to pass on to local customers the benefits of successful efforts to lower costs while improving quality at Case plants. We are committed to delivering the best possible value to our customers."

Editor's Note: Below is the third in a series of letters from Lancaster County's International 4-H Exchange Student Jody Henkel. In the letter, Jody shares her knowlege of Greek foods. Look for a Greek recipe from the American Farm School that Jody included with her letter on page B6, Featured Recipe.

Dear Friends:

Tonight we are visiting a taverna. Greek style eating can be an adventure in food tastes. We start at 9 p.m. — for it has gotten cooler now. (Most Greeks begin eating from 10 to 11 p.m.) To start our eating adventure, cover your tablecloth with a thin plastic cover and we're off!

First comes your silverware along with the bread basket. As you munch on bread, you order drinks and plates of food. To start, you get a cucumber with yogurt salad and eggplant (paste) salad to go with the bread. Then, you choose from squid, octopus, muscles, various fishes, lamb, veal, and pork. They are served on plates placed in the center of the table and you take what you want. Pass the plates around to taste each one or take straight out of the dish if you can reach it.

The foods are cooked in various styles. The squid and octopus are usually fried. The muscles are fried or cooked in a spicey, buttery sauce. Fish can be fried or grilled. Meats are normally grilled but can be put in the form of hamburgers, meatballs, cutlets or shishkabobs (souvlaki). My favorite? Fish and meat souvlakis.

Along with these dishes you usually order potatoes (french fries) and village salad (cucumbers, tomatoes, onions, olives, and feta cheese drenched in oil). For drinks, you can order most everything from Coke and Sprite to water, Retsina wine, beer and ouzo — sorry, no diet drinks.

Of course, these are dishes at tavernas. There are other dishes that are served in homes.

Happy Eating!
Love,
Jody

Editor's Note: Below is a letter from Darlene Resh, Adams County's International 4-H exchangee to Norway. Darlene arrived in Norway in June and will return to the United States in December.

"Welkommen Til Norge!" (Welcome to Norway!)

Greetings from south central Norway. I am living in the county of Buskerud in the town of Gol. It's located in the center of Norway's many mountains. Like Oslo, the capital of Norway, I see about 19 hours of daylight on a typical day in June. However, just the reverse is true during the winter when this area receives only eight to nine hours of sunlight per day.

The countryside around my home is very picturesque and could easily be mistaken for a page out of a travel magazine. Many small farms are nestled in the valley beneath the snow capped and forested mountains. To the north you see typical Norwegian mountains with no trees, just ground cover of evergreens and wild berries. Scattered throughout the mountains are many summer cabins which are a popular holiday home for Norwegians. Sheep and cattle roam freely throughout the mountains during the summer. Everywhere you look throughout Norway you can see many lakes and the famous and majestic wonders - fjords.

I would like to explain what a fjord is. First spread your fingers apart on your one hand and hold your hand at eye level with the palm facing you. Now imagine your palm is the North (Atlantic) Sea. Your fingers represent a fjord which goes far into the coastline. The spaces between your fingers is land. The fjords can be short and narrow or may extend many miles inland with very steep vertical mountains on either side. Some even penetrate through the rolling farmland. The length of Norway is about equal to the width of the U.S. between Arizona and Montana. The entire length of the country is indented with thousands of miles of fjords.

Norwegian homes are small, neatly furnished, and very well built to withstand the snowy winter and very cold temperatures. Large windows allow the sun to penetrate and help to naturally heat the interior. Plus the windows allow you to view the beautiful mountains and farmland. There are doors between all rooms in the house for efficiency in heating. Much of the interior of the home is in natural wood. The floors and walls are decorated with antiques of great grandparents. Weaving and painted wooden items (rosemolding) are traditional in most homes.

The weather in southern Norway is less than ideal. Not long after I arrived at my first host family, I found rubber boots and a raincoat necessary items to have. Usually warm temperatures and frequent rains are common during the summer. I had been here almost 2 weeks before I saw a clear day. Occasionally there were a few nice afternoons to enjoy the beautiful scenery. The view is just a spectacular sight to see and experience. Each day is a new and wonderful sight.

King of the beasts

eat much smaller prey and go for months without drinking water.

Unlike the traditional male lions, who rely on their females to find food, the Kalahari males hunted on their own for months during the drought.

"Separated by great distances for weeks, even months, the former pride-mates could not communicate with each other," said Owens. "We seldom heard lions roar during the dry season, almost never in drought. The lion's system of long-range communication seemed to virtually disappear in these periods of trial by fire. Without it, the social cohesion that holds groups together, or ensures that its members will be reunited, was lost."

When the long-awaited rains fell, the lions once again defended territories and lived in pridelike groups–though those groups were comprised of non-related lions who had banded together during the drought.

"The desert imposed solitude on its inhabitants," the authors wrote. But with the drought over, "the cycle of desert life began once again."

FFA award winners to travel to Washington

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Fifty of the best and brightest young leaders in American agriculture will be honored in Washington, D.C., Sept. 14 to 18.

The students, members of the Future Farmers of America, have earned state Achievement in Volunteerism awards for outstanding individual service in the FFA's Building Our American Communities program. BOAC is a rural community development program that fosters leadership skills.

In Washington, the state Achievement in Volunteerism winners and their advisors will participate in the FFA's National Conference on Community Development. "Leadership for changing communities," theme of the 1985 program, and other critical agriculture issues will be addressed in workshops and meetings with congressional and administrative officials.

Scheduled conference speakers include U.S. Senator Jesse Helms of North Carolina, chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee, and Secretary of Agriculture John Block.

During the September conference, the 50 state winners will receive a certificate and $200 check for their chapter from program sponsor R.J. Reynolds Industries, Inc. In addition, ten finalists will be named, and then compete for the top national honor and a share of $5,050 in awards.

For 14 years, FFA chapters across the United States have identified community needs and developed BOAC projects to meet them. The Achievement in Volunteerism Award recognizes individuals who have made significant contributions to this volunteer effort.

"These young people represent the spirit of individual initiative that has been the foundation of strength and progress throughout our country's history," said J. Tylee Wilson, chairman and chief executive officer of R.J. Reynolds Industries. "Their projects have provided an immediate benefit to their communities. And the leadership skills they have developed will serve them personally as they go on to become public leaders and pursue agribusiness careers."

The BOAC program has received three citations for volunteer achievement from President Ronald Reagan. In 1983, Reagan also presented sponsor R.J. Reynolds a commendation for private sector initiatives in community service.

Some $9.5 million in labor is estimated to be volunteered by FFA members to BOAC projects annually. Since 1971, FFA chapters have conducted more than 16,000 BOAC projects in all 50 states and Puerto Rico.

Finalists for this year's national Achievement in Volunteerism Award will be selected by a panel of judges representing the Departments of Agriculture and Education, the Farmers Home Administration, the Farm Credit Administration and the FFA. The winner will be announced at an awards luncheon at the Cannon House Office Building Caucus Room Sept. 17 as part of the five-day community development workshop.

"Our conference is designed to build on the leadership skills already demonstrated by these students and their adult leaders in conducting BOAC projects," said John Whisman, director of the FFA's National Conference on Community Development. Whisman, who has extensive experience in community development, was a principal in the organization of the Appalachian Regional Commission.

Ladies Have You Heard?

Food Ads Reflect Change In Routine

September means back to school and back on schedule. Food ads are reflecting the change in routine with headline offerings in roasts from the beef chuck and round and occasionally a pork loin roast special.

If you are not yet ready to heat up the kitchen with long cooking roasts, you will be able to buy quartered pork loin, center cut pork chops and shoulder steaks at sale prices.

Some of the better vegetable buys include corn, tomatoes, cabbage, squash, beans and cucumbers. The P's have it at fruit counters in pears, peaches and prune plums. Also look for sale signs on grapes and summer apples.

September's late show of summer produce will offer Pennsylvania-grown goodness until frost catches up. Cauliflower, squash and yellow onions are more hardy type vegetables and, therefore, should remain better buys a little longer than the more tender crops. Potato harvesting is now under way and prices should be lower in the weeks ahead.

They are called by many names: "purple plums;" "prune plums;" "fresh prunes." Don't let the name confuse you. All prunes are plums but not all plums are prunes. A plum is a prune (or prune-plum) when a ripe one can be separated from the pit like a freestone peach. Choose purple plums that are soft enough to yield to slight pressure in the palm of your hand. The most mature plums soften first at the top of stem end.

Bartlett pears now appearing on produce counters usually need further ripening before turning that beautiful yellow color that indicates peak of ripeness. Pears are one of the few fruits that must be picked "green" from the trees to ripen properly.

The Fresh California Bartlett Pear Advisory Board suggests putting green pears in a paper bag and letting them ripen for one or two days at room temperature. some supermarkets sell ripening bowls that are a little more attractive than a brown paper bag but work on the same principle. That is, many kinds of fresh produce give off a natural ethylene gas which acts as a ripening agent. At room temperature the gas is given off more rapidly and the ripening process is speeded up if the gas is contained. Cold temperatures slow the ripening process.

All grapes are as ripe when purchased as they will ever be, so don't buy grapes with the thought of holding them to ripen. Only ready-to-eat grapes are shipped. Grapes should be firmly attached to the stem. If the stem is dry and brittle and grapes tend to fall off. The fruit should appear fresh, smooth and plump, but not sticky.

Keep grapes cold and humid. It's not a good idea to leave them standing out at room temperature.

Parent's Anxiety Over Child Starting School Normal

Children aren't the only ones experiencing some anxiety over starting school. Parents, especially mothers, may also experience some uneasiness of their own over their child's moving into a new phase.

This is perfectly understandable. It means that the parent has to give up some of her control of the child to school authorities and share her child's teaching and upbringing with others. It also may mean that she has major adjustments to make in her own life as she now has a large portion of time free.

It is important for mothers to separate their own anxiety from that of their child. A mother's worry and tension can easily rub off on the youngster. Mothers should acknowledge and accept their own feelings and reactions, get the children off to school and then relax and share their feelings with a friend.

A child's going off to school represents a development phase for parents as well as children. Parents should understand that it is not unusual for the event to be anxiety-producing for them. Each parent carries many childhood memories, especially feelings associated with negative experiences, so parents may have mixed feelings about their child's entrance into the new world of school.

Because parent's reactions to the child's early school experiences are so important for early school adjustment, parents might benefit from reviewing their own satisfaction from school rather than their negative memories.

Twin Valley exhibit takes first at Kutztown

KUTZTOWN — The window exhibit constructed by the Twin Valley FFA chapter placed first at the recent Kutztown Fair. The exhibit entitled, SOS - Save Our Soil, was one of four exhibits displayed by county FFA chapters to promote a theme to both farm audiences and the general public.

The Twin Valley exhibit promotes the use of conservation structures and farming techniques to prevent soil erosion. Contour strip cropping, sod waterways, cropland terraces, minimum and no-till farming, mulch tillage, and fencing pasture streams are the conservation practices featured in the display.

This year's theme was chosen because of the national emphasis on preventing and reducing soil erosion, especially that occurring in the Chesapeake Bay drainage area. The display will also be exhibited at the Allentown and Reading fairs.

Other exhibits were by the Hamburg Chapter, Tulpehocken Chapter, and the Berks County FFA Association.

Humus gives life to soil

LANCASTER — When organic matter decomposes to the extent it can no longer be recognized as to its origin, the name humus is given to it. The life of the soil is found in humus, reminds Arnold G. Lueck, Extension horticultural agent.

Original plant and animal remains break down due to the action of living bacteria, fungi, molds and other micro-organisms.

The humus fraction of soil does wonders to keep the soil alive and well. Plant nutrients are supplied. Soil texture is improved by it. Heavy clays become lighter, more workable; sandy soils and shales in turn will have better retention of both moisture and nutrients.

All kinds of soil will absorb rains better as their humus content improves. The presence of adequate humus even helps keep the soil pH in better balance.

Near the end of the growing season quantities of organic matter--plant leaves, blades, stems, roots, spent flowers, fruits--will be readily available to return to the soil and replenish its humus supply.

Broccoli salad tops vegetable recipe contest

STATE COLLEGE – "Crunchy Broccoli Chef's Salad," a tasty combination of broccoli and other fresh vegetables in an easy-to-prepare recipe, earned Marianne B. Stevens of Bellefonte, Centre County, first place and $100 in the Pennsylvania Vegetable Recipe Contest held recently at Ag Progress Days.

Adrija Pinyot of Pittsburgh prepared the second-place dish, "Quick Spinach Noodle Toss," good for a $50 cash award.

Recipes featuring zucchini as the primary ingredient rounded out the top prize categories. "Orange Zucchini Cookie Bars," prepared by Phyllis Dobson of Library, Allegheny County, and "Zucchini Soufflini," prepared by Camille Hess of Erie, earned the chef's third-place honors.

The winning recipe follows:

Crunchy Broccoli Chef's Salad

2 pounds fresh broccoli
½ cup cooked ham, diced
¼ cup scallions, thinly sliced
1 cup fresh sliced mushrooms
3 ounces shredded Swiss cheese
4 ounces crumbled Feta cheese
½ cup toasted, slivered almonds

Separate flowerets; cut stems into bite-size pieces and peel. Steam vegetables until crisp-tender and cool. Place all ingredients into a gallon jar with a leak-proof lid. Pour dressing over salad. Gently turn jar until all ingredients are mixed. Place on side in refrigerator for at least four hours to chill thoroughly; rotate jar about every hour to circulate marinade.

Dressing:

5 tablespoons fresh squeezed lemon juice
½ cup sunflower oil
2 cloves garlic, minced (optional)
1 tablespoon wine vinegar
¾ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon fresh ground black pepper
3 teaspoons prepared Dijon mustard
¼ cup fresh chopped parsley

Mix dressing together well before pouring over salad.

Serves 4-6 people as an entree; serves 8-10 as a side dish. This salad can be prepared a day ahead. Right before serving, pour salad into a low serving bowl and sprinkle with almonds.

Bar Cookies For Lunch Box Treats

Your microwave is great for baking bar cookies, and bar cookies are great for lunch boxes. They can be made quickly, they don't crumble as much as individual cookies as they are banged around on the way to school, and they cost less than purchased treats.

A homemade bar cookie may not have the cafeteria prestige of a Twinkie, but when treats taste good, most children munch them happily. They probably won't even notice when whole wheat flour, wheat germ or powdered milk are added for extra nutrition!

Most recipes or mixes for bar cookies can be cooked in your microwave without any changes, other than shortening the baking time. If your oven has medium power, bar cookies will be a snap to bake. If you have only high power, getting the middle cooked may be a problem.

Here are some tips for baking your favorite recipes in your microwave. The recipe below for Jambarees has been a big hit with all my kid-taste-testers this summer. They prefer the more nutritious version, when given a choice!

Baking Bar Cookies

1. Bar cookies and brownies bake well in an 8x8-inch glass or plastic pan if you cook them on medium (50,5) power. If you turn the power down to medium when directions call for high, double the time given for high power.

2. Many recipes and mixes call for using a ring mold or putting a glass in the middle of the pan. This is needed if you cook on high power, but not on medium power.

3. Do not grease and flour the pan. Some recipes call for greasing a pan, when necessary. Otherwise, no pan preparation is needed.

4. If the corners of your bar cookies get hard, they are overcooked. To prevent this, shield the corners of the pan with triangles of aluminum foil.

For shielding, I use four 4-inch squares of foil, and fold them diagonally to make triangles of double thickness. Fit these over the top of the four corners of the pan to prevent overcooking in the corners. (The metal foil reflects some of the microwaves away from corners, so they don't cook as fast.) Triangles of double thickness can be saved and used many times before they have to be discarded.

When you use foil for shielding, keep the foil 1-inch or more away from the oven walls, and look through the window to check for arcing (sparks) when you turn on the power. If you don't see any arcing, the metal shielding will not hurt your microwave. If you see arcing, stop the oven and reposition or remove the foil.

Shielding is needed most on high power. You can use it if you bake on medium too, but usually it's not necessary. I put shielding on at the beginning, and leave it on the whole baking time, unless the corners are not cooking as fast as the middle. If the corners aren't cooking, remove the shielding halfway through the baking time.

5. Covering the pan with wax paper will help the cookies bake evenly.

6. Bar cookies are done when the center has raised, and a small damp looking spot remains in the center. If you are using a clear glass pan, check for doneness on the center of the bottom. Very little unbaked batter should appear. Bar cookies will cook a little more during standing time, so don't overcook them. Cookies that are hard or dry are overcooked.

7. Let the pan sit directly on a countertop or bread board for 5-10 minutes standing time to finish cooking.

8. If you are adapting a conventional recipe, use an 8x8-inch square pan, or 8x12-inch pan. Bake the cookies on medium (50,5) for about 8-12 minutes, until the center raises, then bake on high for 1-3 minutes until done.

Jambarees

2 sticks margarine or butter
1 cup sugar
1 egg
½ teaspoon vanilla
1½ cups flour*
½ cup whole wheat flour
2 tablespoons wheat germ
2 tablespoons soy flour
2 tablespoons dry powdered milk
1 cup chopped nuts
½ cup jam

1. Soften margarine in a mixing bowl by microwaving on low (30,3, defrost) for 1 minute. Beat margarine with sugar, until fluffy and light. Add egg and vanilla, then whole wheat flour, wheat germ, soy flour and dry milk. Mix in white flour, blending well. Reserve 2 tablespoons nuts for topping and stir in remaining nuts.

2. Grease an 8-inch square pan, and spread about 1/3 dough in the bottom. Press it flat and even, using a spatula or fingers (moisten with cold water and dough won't stick).

3. If jam is chilled, microwave on high for 20-30 seconds to soften so it will spread more easily. Stir jam, then spread over dough, almost to edges.

4. Drop small spoonfuls of remaining dough over the jam and spread gently to cover jam. Sprinkle top with 2 tablespoons reserved chopped nuts.

5. Cover pan with waxed paper and bake on medium (50,5) for 12-13 minutes until the center is raised. Increase power and cook on high for 2-3 minutes until dry and cooked all over.

6. Cool for about 30 minutes, then cut while still warm.

TIP: If desired, 2 cups white flour may be used instead of the whole wheat flour, wheat germ, soy flour, and powdered milk. Other directions remain the same.

NOTE: The times above are for ovens with 600-700 watts of power. For 500-600 W, add 10 seconds to each minute; for 400-500 W, add 20 seconds to each minute

Beth Morgan attends PAFC institute

HUNTINGDON — Beth Morgan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Morgan of RD 1 Birdsboro, and president of the Twin Valley FFA Chapter, was one of twelve youth from the Blue Mountain Cooperative Council to attend the recent PAFC summer institute.

The institute, held at Juniata College, Huntingdon, is designed to help youth understand the principles of farmer cooperatives and how they function in our American business system. Youth from across Pennsylvania, Delaware, New Jersey, and New York are brought together at the Pennsylvania Association of Farmer Cooperatives summer institute with educational leaders and leaders of farmer cooperatives to explore the values and problems of cooperatives.

Youth attending the institute are divided into first and second year scholars. First-year scholars, including Beth, spent considerable time discussing cooperatives in small groups and with cooperative leaders.

Second-year scholars organize a mini-cooperative which sponsors several social events, runs the newspaper, and generally help to organize events. At the conclusion of the institute scholars are tested on their knowledge of cooperatives and are rated on their participation in various activities. The top individuals receive scholarships to the American Institute of Cooperation national institute. Beth was chosen as the first alternate because of her test score and high level of participation.

the airflo long range cannon has 5 major advantages

More air
Its exceptionally powerful 39 inches fan delivers an air speed of 280 MPH and is recommended for use with a tractor of 60 or more horsepower
More penetration
The AIRFLO LONG RANGE CANNON ensures excellent coverage for vegetables row crops and trellised plants
The cannon sprays up to 120 feet with each pass
The swivel head can be moved in any direction from the tractor seat
Improved coverage
Greater precision
The AIRFLO LONG RANGE CANNON has a self regulating control system The fluid flow rate is proportional to the R P M s of the P T O and therefore to the speed of the tractor (for a given tractor gear speed)
This is your guarantee of improved dosage and therefore of improved treatment
Greater adaptability
With the DS 401 piston diaphragm pump (12 gallons/minute at 284 P S I) the double high and low pressure circuits and the declutchable fan it can also be used with a hand gun (for winter treatments weeding and for washing down the tractor)

Greater user facility
Standard equipment includes a hydraulic remote control for height adjustment and a hydraulic motor for lateral (left right) adjustment to ensure the best possible orientation of the cannon
. operating with the oscillating cannon
Electronically-controlled electro magnetic device for regulation of the swing arc In this way the coverage can be adjusted extremely precisely and the treatment defined exactly to take account of the wind Usage is easier and leads to considerable savings in the quantity of chemicals excellent for use in irregularly shaped areas

Framed fabrics for decorators' touch

By Wendi R. Blanchard
Copley News Service

Framed fabrics offer the home decorator an easy and inexpensive solution for covering wall areas and provide an excellent tool for coordinating room colors.

Bold, graphic patterns with colorful geometric, designs can update a teenager's room or family room. Florals and pictorial fabrics add new life to a living room, dining room or bedroom decor. Quilts, flags or hand-painted cloth can all be turned into pictures with the technique that follows.

Materials

Fabric to be framed (allow at least 1½ inches on all four sides of the fabric to overhang the frame).

Stretcher strips (used to stretch canvas for painting).

Lightweight staple gun with ¼-inch or 5.16-inch staples (or you can use small tacks if a gun is not available).

Iron for pressing.

Begin by assembling the stretcher strips into a frame. Try to get all the corners as square as possible. It is not necessary to glue or nail the corners together.

Carefully iron the fabric. Remember that it is much easier to get the creases out before the fabric is stapled, though some of the wrinkles will be pulled out by stretching.

Now spread the fabric out flat onto the floor or a table with the print side out. Next, place the frame (stretcher) over the fabric, allowing an even amount of overhang on all four sides. (See illustrations).

Take the staple gun and start stretching the fabric by stapling it to the frame from the middle of each of the sides. After you have secured the center on each side, start stapling from the center and working toward the corners. Do the longer sides first and place the staples about three inches apart.

After you have stapled the longer sides, proceed to staple the shorter sides in the same manner. Fold the fabric neatly into the corners. Next spray with warm water to shrink the cloth slightly and tighten up the picture.

Hang your picture by adding two eye screws and picture wire to the back. Try an arrangement of several prints for an extra large wall area.

Hand-painted fabrics on light-weight weaves can be stretched and hung with a light behind the frame. The effect is faux stained glass. The fabric should be hung about two inches out from the wall and a low-wattage bulb used to prevent fading or burning of the fabric.

It's time to enter Make-It-With-Wool Contest

NEW BLOOMFIELD — Natural fibers have returned to the home sewing fashion scene and they are better than ever. This is your opportunity, using wool, to display your design and construction talents by entering the 1985 District 3, Make-It-Yourself-With-Wool Competition.

District 3 includes Adams, Cumberland, Dauphin, Franklin, Juniata and Perry Counties. The Chambersburg Mall is hosting the competition on Saturday, Oct. 12.

Anyone 10 years or older may enter and model the garment(s) he or she has made from wool fabric. Local winners in the junior and senior divisions will compete for state prizes in November at the Nittany Mall in State College.

Two other divisions are pre-teen and adult. All local participants will receive a gift and the winners will be awarded prizes.

The prizes will be donated by individuals and businesses who are involved in raising sheep, wholesaling or retailing unfinished or finished wool products.

Entry forms are due Sept 15. A form and contest brochure can be obtained from your local Extension Office, fabric stores or by sending a business-size, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Mrs. Mary M. Myers, District 3 Director, R. D. 1 - Box 228, Elliottsburg, PA 17024.

If you are interested in sponsoring a gift or prize or have any questions concerning this event, contact Mrs. Myers.

The Make-It-Yourself-With-Wool Competition nationwide contest is sponsored by the American Sheep Producers Council, Inc. and the Women's Auxiliary-National Wool Growers Association.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

Before summer is over and my husband's busy season starts, we have managed to take a day off now and then to fish. Soon he will be busy filling the three silos with silage for our hungry cows and heifers to eat this winter.

There are so many things to take along when we go fishing that we always seem to forget something. One time I left the life-jackets at home and we had to go back for them. Another time I forgot to put ice in a bucket to keep our worms alive. That day the night crawlers all died because it was a hot, sunny day as we sat in our boat on Speedwell Lake north of Lititz. Even though I used lotion, I got a real sunburn.

When we get up at five o'clock to drive to Blue Marsh in Berks County, we arrive while the mist is still rising from the water. Only one person has arrived before us. As we launch our boat, we notice that many fish are jumping and leaving ripples on the quiet surface.

My husband and I have different ideas on fishing. He only wants big ones but I'd sooner catch little ones than sit for hours and not get a nibble. We use different bait and as a result he got a nice-sized pickerel and I got 25 pan fish. However I had to scale only some of them since I put 15 back. Allen told me that, "They must have all come from the same litter," as their size was similar.

I know this activity doesn't give us much exercise but we get plenty of that at home on the farm. Recently, my daughter participated in a 62-mile bicycle ride over back country roads. Now that is exercise! We try to temper our leisure time to easy and unhurried pursuits.

Susan Lowman tops Delaware 4-H Poultry, Egg Contest

NEWARK, Del. – Winners have been announced in Delaware's annual 4-H Poultry and Egg Contest. The event was held recently at the W.T. Chipman School in Harrington. Fifteen young competitors were on hand to test their knowledge of poultry and eggs.

Top honors went to Susan Lowman, a 4-H'er from near Newark. The runner-up, Cheryl Lowman, is the winner's sister and a former contestant at the National 4-H Poultry and Egg Conference. Third place went to Sheila Eastman of Harrington. Fourth place was taken by Nancy Skaggs, Clayton, and fifth place by Valerie Moore, Bear.

Contestants graded eggs for interior quality by candling, interior quality when broken out, and exterior quality. Two classes of hens were judged for past production.

Ready to cook poultry was divided into two classes by size and judged according to USDA standards. Finally, contestants were given an oral examination on their reasons for ranking the production hens, and a written examination covering various aspects of poultry and egg judging.

Up to four competitors from the state contest will be given the opportunity to participate in the 1985 National 4-H Poultry and Egg Conference, which will be held Nov. 20 and 21 in Louisville, Ky.

NEW!... Surge Alert™

Now, milk more consistently and save time, too!

That's just what the new Surge ALERT™ is designed to do.

The Surge ALERT is a lighweight end-of-milking signal that uses a unique infrared light beam to look through the milk hose to sense end of milk flow. So there's absolutely nothing in the line itself to create a restriction, fluctuation, or loss of vacuum. And there's no premature removal or shutdown.

And it's precise. Both a flashing light and beeper indicate the end of milking. So operators know exactly when to remove the milker.

That saves time. And to help eliminate the chance of harmful overmilking.

Plus, the Surge ALERT operates off a standard 24 volt pulsator and needs no extra hoses. And the built-in handle makes it easy to move from cow to cow.

Making your cows worth more.

The Surge ALERT is one more way we're keeping that commitment . to help you come out ahead.

SURGE We make every cow you own worth more

We can make your cows worth more.

Dow says growers may use brine-grade pellets

MIDLAND, MI – Despite an impending revision to the Food Chemicals Codex (FCC), solutions of brining grade calcium chloride will still be perfectly acceptable for post-harvest brining, according to The Dow Chemical Company.

The pending FCC revision specifically addresses a new seventh requirement – a maximum level on acid insolubles in solid, anhydrous calcium chloride. Rumors of this revision have lead some processors and growers to believe that only the more expensive food-grade calcium chloride may now be used for brining.

In reality, brining grade calcium chloride pellets, such as PELADOW® Brining Grade 94-97% calcium chloride, continue to meet the FCC compositional specifications when they are mixed with water to produce the brining solution.

Brining with solutions made from calcium chloride helps processors and growers improve the shipping and storage life and quality of certain produce such as cherries, apples, olives, and pickles. However, the brining grade calcium chloride pellets cost substantially less than the food grade material.

Each lot of PELADOW Brining Grade 94-97% calcium chloride is accompanied by a Certificate of Analysis which documents chemical purity of that lot. PELADOW Brining Grade 94-97% calcium chloride has been certified by the Union of Orthodox Jewish Congregations of America for processing kosher foods.

For more information about post-harvest treatment of fruits and vegetables with calcium chloride brine, contact the Specialty Chemicals Department, Dow Chemical U.S.A., P.O. Box 1206, Midland, Michigan 48674.

Made of heavy gauge high carbon alloy steel, heat treated for long trouble-free service. The special forging process used gives the blades a finer grain in the steel and makes it tougher and much more able to withstand rough usage. All fit square axle.

Money In The Bank

As you are harvesting your corn and alfalfa, you are putting money in the bank. If you are like many dairymen I talk to, that is one thing you can stand more of! The more forage and grain you harvest per acre, the higher its quality when harvested, the more of it you preserve in storage, and the less of it you waste when handling and feeding it, the more money you have in the bank.

So, let's focus on corn silage, because silo filling time is at hand. This is a time when too many farmers throw their herds into a slump. Why? Because cows are: 1) being fed hot uncured silage, 2) being fed green chopped corn, and 3) they are being switched suddenly from one feed to another without adequate time to adjust. This wastes money you already had in the bank because it's wasting good feed; cows aren't producing as much milk and fat from this feed as they could. These slumps can be avoided with some good planning and management.

First, don't feed cows fresh, green-chopped corn.

Second, avoid feeding hot, uncured silage. Try to have a supply of cured silage available to feed while the main silos are being filled and cured. This might require making a stack or filling a bag with silage, and preserving it until next harvest season. Or, put up an extra storage unit.

Third, make switches from one feed to another very gradually. A cow's rumen may need 2-3 weeks to adjust to the change. As changes are made be sure to make adjustments in the remainder of the ration, too, so it stays in balance. Anticipate changes and be prepared in advance to make the necessary adjustments when the change is made--not 2 weeks later, when you've finally caught up with the change.

One way to accomplish this is to test as many of your forages as possible before you actually start feeding them. That way you can have a planned feeding program in hand ready to use when you need it.

Aim For Quality

Ensile corn when it is about 65 percent moisture. The kernels should be about at the hard dough dent stage of maturity.

As corn breeders strive to develop hybrids for better standability and for rapid dry down of the ear, it appears to me that we are seeing more corn where the ear is dry, the kernels are hard and glazed and the stalk is still full of life and high in moisture.

By the time the stalk is dry enough, a lot of the leaves are dead and the kernels are harder to crack and digest. I am not sure if this corn makes the best silage. If this is a concern of yours, you may want to evaluate and choose hybrids accordingly--for the purpose you have in mind.

Chop fine enough for good packing--this will vary with the moisture content--but not too fine so as to destroy the effectiveness of the fiber. The fineness that you can tolerate will also be influenced by the other forages that help to make up the ration. A good guideline is a theoretical length of 3/8 inch.

Fill the silo rapidly. Distribute the silage evenly and pack it well into a tight storage unit. A preservative may or may not be beneficial. However, the use of a good presevative can be thought of as insurance; if things are right for an adverse fermentation, you might be covered. There's not much fun in being stuck with a silo full of off-quality silage.

Some preservatives also double as a feed additive. For example, anhydrous ammonia, in addition to helping preserve the silage, can help increase its protein content It's an economical source of non-protein nitrogen.

Some non-protein nitrogen is beneficial in the ration; the rumen "bugs" need it. But, excesses can be toxic to the animal. So, when you feed non-protein nitrogen, you have to consider the entire ration Anhydrous ammonia also is a product that can be dangerous to your health if handled improperly.

Late summer and fall is a time to exert a lot of effort in doing things right. What you do now determines what you have to live with for many months. Don't miss the opportunity to get on the right track.

Lancaster Co. to participate in '86 gypsy moth program

LANCASTER – Gypsy moth infestation and defoliation in 1986 in Lancaster County are expected to be down from levels of 1985 and previous years. This can be attributed to the naturally occurring collapse of the gypsy moth population. Lancaster County, however, will still participate in the 1986 County-State-Federal Gypsy Moth Spray Program to protect those forested residential, recreational, and certain other high-use or high-value forested areas that qualify for the Gypsy Moth Spray Program.

Requirements for qualifying spray areas are: (1) area must be forested residential, forested recreational, or forested special-use, (2) egg mass numbers must be at least 250 healthy egg masses per acre, and (3) forest cover must contain forest tree species that are susceptible to gypsy moth damage and have at least 50 percent of the area covered by tree foliage.

As in the past, local municipalities are working with the County to determine areas that may qualify for spring. Twenty-five municipalities in Lancaster County have appointed local gypsy moth coordinators for the 1986 Gypsy Moth Spray Program.

Residents who wish to request gypsy moth control assistance for 1986 should contact the local coordinator for their municipality no later than September 9, 1985. Residents of municipalities for which a local coordinator has not been appointed should contact the Lancaster County Planning Commission. Requests for gypsy moth control assistance cannot be considered after September 23, 1985.

Following are the names of local coordinators: Adamstown Borough, Eugene Bezler; Akron Borough, Lloyd Hackman; Bart Township, Donald Armer; Caernarvon Township, Patti Milner; Clay Township, John Buchter; Colerain Township, John and Mary Frohmander; Conestoga Township, William Killough; Drumore Township, Martin Eshleman; East Cocalico Township, David Hoover; East Drumore Township, Thomas Church; East Earl Township, George Weaver; East Hempfield Township, Timothy Breneisen; Elizabeth Township, Walter Bradley; Ephrata Borough, Victor Dickinson; Ephrata Township, John Weber; Fulton Township, Neal Johnson; Little Britain Township, Herbert Marsh; and Manor Township, Jay Stauffer.

Farm pond residents: some can get under your skin

Extension Forestry Specialist

UNIVERSITY PARK — The wildlife that centers at a rural pond is a fascinating mix of species, and the interaction of the life chains are a marvel.

Although many of those chains go unnoticed by man, there are a few which may catch his attention. Man can even be an unsuspecting or unintentional link in that chain.

He is in the case of the parasitic flat worm. The cycle begins with the adult worm living as a parasite in the tissues of a suitable nonhuman mammal or bird, especially certain wild waterfowl. Here eggs are produced and pass into the water along with the droppings of the host.

Each egg contains an embryo which, upon hatching, develops into a ciliated organism called a miracidium that swims about in search of a second host.

The second host must be the proper species of aquatic snail. Unless the correct snail is located, the miracidium will be unable to develop further and will die in a few hours.

If the snail is located, the miracidium will penetrate its soft tissues and will be able to pass through reproductive activities, producing organisms called cercariae. These in turn are set free from the snail and may move about by swimming.

In order to complete the normal cycle, these cercariae must locate an individual of the proper original host, whether it be a nonhuman mammal or bird, and penetrate into its tissues. The cycle is then repeated.

And thus you have swimmers' itch.

It is not a serious health problem, and it may be viewed as a mild nuisance statewide, but the individual pond owner who has the problem may not agree.

The individual who experiences a tingling sensation in exposed parts of the body and begins to see minute red spots on his skin has probably just become the unwitting temporary host for the larval parasite.

The tingling may disappear and it may be a number of hours before a distinct itching is felt, an immune reaction, even though the cercariae have been destroyed within the body. It's uncomfortable, but not deadly, often likened to an infestation of chiggers.

I suggest that swimmers don't enter and leave the water frequently, remaining immersed until finished bathing. Once out of the water, rub down briskly and thoroughly with a towel. This crushes and destroys the cercariae before they have an opportunity to penetrate the skin.

If you feel it is necessary to rid your pond of the potential for swimmers' itch, you have to remove the offending snails.

Removing the snails is easier said than done. Remember that ponds are small ecological systems (ecosystems). The life cycle of the swimmers' itch parasite clearly demonstrates just how complex and involved these ecological phenomena can be.

Although snail removal sounds simple enough, current practices that will achieve this end are rather drastic. Any snail management would hold dire consequences for most of the living organisms (plant and animal) to the extent that new and different relationships and balances would have to be established. This, of course, would take time, perhaps years. Unaided natural systems composed of living organisms respond slowly.

One word of caution: most natural systems now fall under the scrutiny of governmental agencies. They are charged with maintaining the integrity of these sometimes delicate systems and to insure that any management plan will not adversely affect adjacent systems.

Ponds are open systems, open to many influences which occur outside the pond. Depending on the original source of snails and the parasite, there is no guarantee that swimmers' itch will not become re-established after time even if it once was eliminated.

Learn as much as you can about the natural processes in your pond before setting out to change things. Time invested in gaining knowledge about a pond's plant and animals may pay handsome dividends.

Drill With The Case International "5100 Special"

Outstanding accuracy begins with IH feed cups that deliver seed uniformly. Dual rib press wheels then compact the soil around the seed and gently "pat" the top to prevent air holes. The result is uniform germination and an emergence toward higher yields.

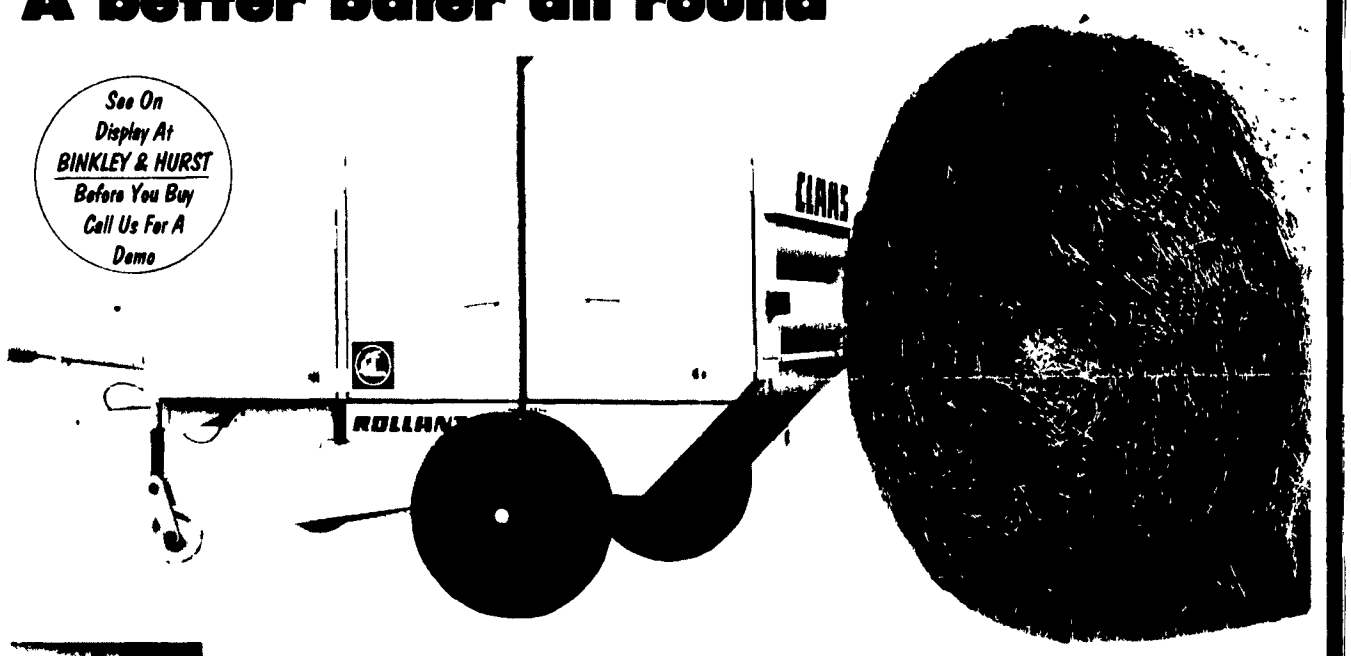
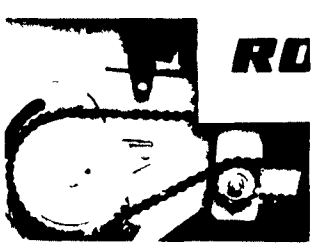
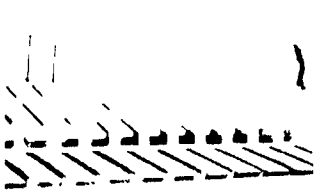
Are You Tired Of Repairing And Replacing Belts And Chains On Your Round Baler?

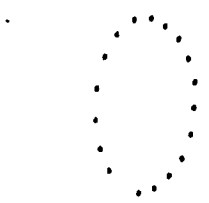
CLAAS ROLLANT

A better baler all round









Fully dampened, spring suspension pick-up
The ROLLANT full width pickup follows the ground contour to perform consistently and cleanly even with a difficult crop such as corn fodder. Pick-up flotation is provided by two springs and a shock absorber prevents pickup bounce over uneven ground.

An even feed into the bale chamber
Directly behind the pickup is the feed assister which ensures even feed of material from the pickup into the bale chamber. The feed assister reduces the wear on the pickup and is very effective in short crops.

Rollers all round
The bale chamber is formed by a continuous line of driven rollers. There are no plates to slow the action and cause crop damage. Hay, straw or unwilted silage is fed into the bale chamber and compressed firmly and effectively from the outside inwards.

A better grip
ROLLANT rollers have a dimpled finish for long life, which doesn't wear out and does not need to be re-textured. Above all they keep the crop rotating in the bale chamber. The rollers are strong and comparatively light and will not block or become choked up.

The main gathering auger is heavy duty 16" diameter, with 5/16" flighting mounted on a 4" tube. The auger has adjustable front and rear 14 gau. galvanized shields, for maximum capacity The auger is powered by a 60 lb gearbox which brings forage to the center for the delivery chain
To deliver the high volume of forage from the sweep auger to the inside chute, a heavy duty hook chain with hardened cutters is used to convey the forage The stainless steel top shield is easily removed to adjust the chain if needed. The plate and V pipe keep the delivery chain positioned over the inside chute in the forage.

Only one silage inoculant can show an 8 to 1 return on investment. And prove it.

Feeding trials show that silage treated with Pioneer® brand 1177 silage inoculant gives you up to $8.00 more milk for every $1.00 invested in 1177 silage inoculant. To get a FREE copy of the feeding trials results, just call 1-800-247-6782, Ext. MILK.

Why treating with 1177 silage inoculant gives you more milk per ton of silage.

The fermentation process is essential in making good silage. Yet, nutrients can be lost during this process due to spoilage, overheating and run-off.

You see, bacteria are the key to good fermentation. And some beneficial bacteria strains are on the crop itself. The problem is, the right kinds of bacteria aren't always there in large enough numbers to do the best job.

Only by using 1177 silage inoculant can you be sure there are a sufficient number of bacteria for fast, efficient fermentation. And better fermentation means reducing spoilage, overheating and run-off. That way, your silage retains more of its nutritional value — providing your animals with the best feed possible.

Quality...through each phase of development.

Pioneer is the only agricultural producer of silage additives involved in all phases of the product: basic and applied research, production, animal feeding trials, marketing and service. So, when you use 1177 silage inoculant in your operation, you can be confident that you're getting the highest quality silage inoculant available.

Talk to your Pioneer sales representative about 1177 silage inoculant, he'll show you how to get more milk for every ton of forage you ensile.

BY BETSY STITT
Staff Correspondent

MARTINSBURG – Veteran showpersons won the championship honors in the steer and lamb competition at the annual Blair County 4-H and FFA Livestock Roundup held Aug. 20 at Memorial Park.

Steers

Sheila Biddle, Williamsburg, showed the grand champion steer. Miss Biddle, who is also serving as the Blair County Dairy Princess, showed a 1,142 pound Hereford-cross steer named "Chubs." This is Sheila's 11th year of baby beef competition, and the first year she has broken into the champion circle. "Chubs" was first in the middleweight class.

The buyer of the champion beef was Giant Eagle Supermarket of Roaring Spring. The firm ended the bidding at $2.30 a pound for a total of $2,626.

The reserve champion steer was shown by Robbie Hileman, also of Williamsburg. Robbie's 1,142-pound Chianina cross named "Skeeter" brought $1.21 a pound. Garner's Meat of Altoona was the successful bidder and bought the steer for a total of $1,382. Robbie's steer was the second-place middleweight winner.

First-place exhibitors in the other weight classes were as follows: Sam Stahl - lightweight; Dwight Brumbaugh - middle lightweight; Chris Baker - medium heavyweight; Roger Stock - heavyweight.

The 32 steers raised by club members for this year's competition had a higher average weight than in many years. The average weight was 1,143 pounds, and they sold for an average of 72 cents a pound.

First and second-place grooming and showmanship awards went to: Junior grooming - Robbie Hileman and Roger Stock; Junior showing - Robbie Hileman and Kristin Longenecker; Senior grooming - Jody Longenecker and Tom Harris; Senior showing - Chris Baker and Melissa Longenecker.

Sheep

Holli Pheasant, Williamsburg, another veteran of the showring, won grand champion with her homebred Suffolk lamb, "Spunky Chunky." This is the fifth straight year she has won grand champion. Shaw Brothers bought her 124-pound lamb for $4.90 a pound, for a total of $608.

Holli also swept the top awards in the senior division for showing and grooming. She was the breeder of the first-place lamb in each of the three weight classes.

Holli's cousin, Roger Stock, a first-year member, had the reserve grand champion. His lamb weighed 118 pounds and was sold for $2.30 a pound. Shaw Brothers also bought Roger's lamb.

Grooming and showing awards in the lamb competition went to: Junior grooming - Christine Rhodes and Roger Stock; Junior showing - Cathy Longenecker and Christine Rhodes; First year showing - Danielle Longenecker and Paula Longenecker; Senior grooming - Holli Pheasant and Amy Longenecker; Senior showing - Holli Pheasant and Debby Stahl.

Twenty lambs sold for an average of 84 cents a pound.

Hogs

The grand champion hog was a 244-pound spotted gilt owned by Kevin Dowey of Williamsburg. Shaw Brothers Packing bought "Black" for $4.20 a pound for a total of $1025.

Robbie Stultz, also of Williamsburg, had the reserve grand champion. His 226-pound Spot named "Corky" was bought by Giant Eagle Supermarket, who paid $3 a pound. Giant Eagle officials Dan and Bob Rohrbaugh donated the animal back to the 4-H Swine Club and it was resold to Shaw Brothers for 85 cents a pound. Proceeds will go toward the cost of the livestock banquet later this fall.

First-place exhibitors in the weight classes were as follows: Kevin Dowey - heavyweight; Robbie Stoltz - medium weight; Holli Pheasant - lightweight.

Fitting and showing winners in the swine competition were: Junior fitting - Roger Stock and Corina Frye; Junior showing - Robbie Stultz and Roger Stock; Senior fitting - John Dowey and Kevin Dowey; Senior showing - Sheila Biddle and Kevin Rhodes.

A total of 45 hogs were sold for an average of 80 cents a pound.

A Winning Team

September kicks off the season of community fairs in Lancaster County and the first one in Elizabethtown was certainly a success! These local fairs provide an opportunity for young and old to exhibit projects they have worked on throughout the year. The awards that are won are taken home to be cherished for many years. I hope that many of you can lend support to these exhibitors by attending your local fair.

The topic of awards reminds me of another group of fine Lancaster County 4-H members who captured the state championship recently in Meats Judging and Identification at State 4-H Achievement Days at Penn State. These 4-H teenagers, coached by Summer Extension Intern, Duff George of Carlisle and Becky Salamone, of Lancaster are now headed for the National Contest to be held in Kansas City during the American Royal Livestock Show this November.

We are really appreciative of the great support of Lancaster County's meat industry people who allowed us to work in their facilities on a regular basis to train our winning team. Hats off to John Henry Brubaker of the Stonebridge Butcher Shop, Mount Joy; Willie Kreider (Willie the Butcher) of Stauffer's of Kissel Hill; Joe Groff, Groff Meats, Elizabethtown; and Jerry Gregg, Kunzler and Co. Lancaster. These men provided great cooperation and expertise in the education of our team.

The state champions were fortunate to have Duff George, a Penn State student as their coach this summer. He put together a complete 4-H meats program for Lancaster County that we can build on for the future. If you are interested, give us a call! Good luck team!

USDA proposes ELIZA test for PRV

WASHINGTON, D.C. – The U.S. Department of Agriculture recently proposed to add the Enzyme-Linked Immunosorbent Assay (ELISA) test to the list of official tests for pseudorabies.

Pseudorabies, also known as Aujeskjy's disease, mad itch, and infectious bulbar paralysis, is a herpes virus infection that can cause serious losses in swine. Official pseudorabies tests are used for determining the eligibility of certain animals for movement in interstate commerce.

"Current federal regulations are designed to prevent the spread of pseudorabies, and use of the ELISA test should further this effort by giving us another tool for helping to determine the pseudorabies status of swine," said Bert W. Hawkins, administrator of the USDA's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service.

"The ELISA test is at least as sensitive as the other three official tests now available," Hawkins said, "but it has the advantages of being quicker and more convenient under certain circumstances."

The proposal is scheduled for publication in the Aug. 20 Federal Register. Public comments on the proposal may be sent no later than Sept. 20 to Thomas O. Gessel, U.S. Department of Agriculture, Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service, Room 728 Federal Building, 6505 Belcrest Rd., Hyattsville, Md. 20782.

Elizabethtown Fair sells market champions

ELIZABETHTOWN — Elizabethtown Fair [illegible] their market [illegible] auction block on Aug. 20, following a week of show competition.

Though most of the show's market lambs will continue on to other competitions, the fair also reserved a separate market class for those lambs ready to be sold.

In the sale class, both champion and reserve honors went to Margaret Herr of Narvon. Her 112-pound grand champion went to Lebanon Valley National Bank for $1.70 a pound, with the 118-pound reserve champion being sold to B&B Livestock, Danville, Ohio, for an even dollar.

The event's top lamb buyers included Willie the Butcher, Fox Markets, Longenecker's Hatchery and Evergreen Tractor.

The grand champion market hog, exhibited by Jason Miller of Elizabethtown, was one of 64 hogs sold. Miller's 227-pound porker went to Hatfield Packing for $2.25 a pound.

Hatfield also offered the top bid of $1.30 for Sharon Huntzberger's reserve champion. Overall, hogs averaged 60 cents a pound, not including champions. Volume buyers were Hatfield Packing, Groff Meats Inc., White Oak Mills, Lancaster Farm Credit and Balsbaugh Insurance Agency.

'Best get better' at Crawford 4-H Livestock Sale

BY NANCY KUNICK
Staff Correspondent

MEADVILLE — The Crawford County 4-H Livestock Market Sale held Aug. 23 was a record breaker, in more ways than one.

Auction officials were determined to "make the best better" this year, by streamlining auction procedures and keeping the sale's duration to four hours. The sale began at 5 p.m., one hour earlier than normal. These improvements resulted in buyers staying for the entire sale, which ultimately netted higher prices for exhibitors.

Four records were broken during the bidding for the champion and reserve champion market animals. The first record to fall was for champion market swine. This year the pork on the hoof went for 3.50 per lb., outdoing the 1982 record of 3.25 per pound. First National Bank of Meadville outclassed their own record for the 258 lb. pig owned by Ken Seely of Cambridge Springs.

The reserve champion hog went to buyer Jones Floorcovering of Linesville for 2.85 per lb. That was considerably more than the prices paid the last two years but did not quite meet the '82 record of 3.15. The 219-pounder was owned by Lisa Zirkle of Saegertown.

This year the champion market lamb was exhibited by Shawnya Griggs, a nine-year-old from Hartstown. Thorne's Supermarket of Meadville purchased the 117 lb. lamb for an eyepopping 10.50 per lb. However, this price tag did not meet the 12.50 record paid in 1982.

A record was repeated for the reserve champion lamb when First National Bank bid 9.75 per lb. for the 132-pounder owned by Kelly McDonald of Jamestown. Kelly's 1982 champion still holds that record. The prior reserve record stood at 9.25 per pound, paid in 1981 to Kelly. It's apparent that she knows how to feed her lambs for market.

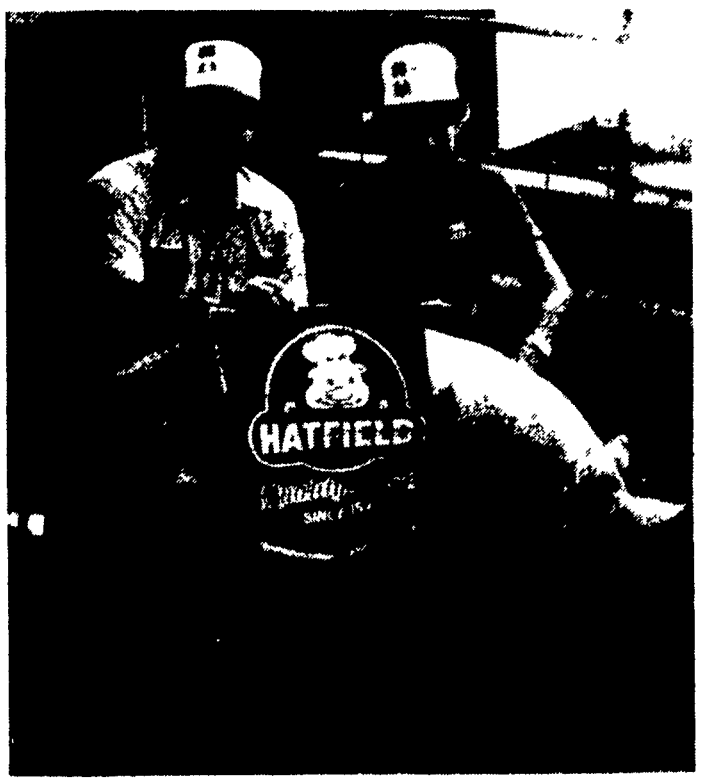
Both steer prices set new highs as the champion steer surpassed the former price by $1. Cabot Oil & Gas paid $4 a pound for the 1,220 pound steer owned by Dennis Livingston of Jamestown. They then donated the steer to Valona Industries, a program for the handicapped. Cabot had purchased the champion steer in 1984 also.

Larry Mattocks showed his 1,180 lb. steer to the reserve championship and to a record setting $1.90 per pound. Thorne's Supermarket bought the Meadville 4-Her's steer. The previous record stood at $1.80 from 1980.

The averages, including the champions, were very good and Extension agent Blaine Schlosser was well pleased with the prices. The 38 hogs averaged $1.36 per lb. while the lambs, numbering 42, brought an average of $2.15 per lb. The 41 steers averaged $1.03 per lb. A few more lambs were sold this year with a slight reduction in the number of hogs and in beef cattle.

Although it was the thirteenth annual 4-H Livestock Market Sale, it appeared that auctioneers Earl, Dave and Bruce Nicolls, along with Gary Shidemantle, Sherman Allen and George Palahunik had few problems. In fact, the sale was better than ever.

Homegrown Lehigh Champ



The Grand Champion at the 1985 Lehigh County 4-H Market Swine Roundup was exhibited by Seth Gruber (right), Route 2, New Tripoli and purchased by Jerry Clemmons of Hatfield Packing Company, Hatfield for $3.40/lb. The 250-pound Yorkshire x Hampshire F-1 crossbred was bred on the Gruber family's Compass Farm. Seth, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry A. W. Gruber, is a freshman at Penn State's Allentown Campus.

Cumberland Swine Champs

Patrick Metcalf's Cumberland County grand champion 4-H Market Hog was purchased by Hatfield for $4.80 a pound. Ezra Good of Hatfield Packing Company is shown with Patrick and his 235 pound pig. The Cumberland County 4-H Swine Sale averaged .77 cents a pound thanks to the support of area buyers. Patrick is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Metcalf, 228 Pine Road, Mt. Holly Springs.

Fulton Co. Livestock Sale registers 'beefy' prices

McCONNELLSBURG – Rainy weather did not dampen the enthusiasm of buyers and spectators who turned out for the 22nd annual Youth Livestock Sale held at the Fulton County Fairgrounds in McConnellsburg on Aug. 24.

Kevin Anderson's 1200 lb. grand champion Simmental-Hereford crossbred steer sold to Johnnie's Diner of McConnellsburg at $4.17 per lb. for a total of $5010. Kevin is a member of the Central Fulton FFA Chapter and purchased his steer from Jere Wingert of St. Thomas. This was Kevin's first venture into the show ring and, needless to say, he was quite thrilled by the week's turn of events.

Runner-up bidder on the grand champion, L&B Coal Co. of Waterfall, was the successful buyer of the 1360 lb. Angus/Chi/Simmental/Hereford reserve grand champion steer at $2.37 per lb. for a total price of $3230. The reserve champion belonged to Richard Price of the Forbes Road FFA Chapter and was purchased from David Shultz of Mechanicsburg.

The remaining 21 steers sold enthusiastically to area businessmen who do an excellent job of supporting this annual event, as evidenced by the fact that only four steers sold for less than 80 cents per lb. The IGA Foodliner of McConnellsburg was volume buyer with five steers, and The Fulton County National Bank and Trust Co. made its usual purchase of three steers which are in turn donated to each of the volunteer fire companies in Fulton County for their use in fund-raising activities.

The sale averaged 1.03 per lb., or $1131.03 per head with the champions, and 81 cents per lb., or $846.37 per head, without the champions.

Beef parley visits ABS

DeFOREST, WI – The agenda for the recent Beef Improvement Federation (BIF) annual convention in Madison, Wisconsin, included a visit to American Breeders Service.

The 165 BIF members participated in a tour of ABS facilities and later were the company's guests at a barbecue, featuring prime rib roasted over applewood, hickory and mesquite, on the lawn at ABS headquarters near DeForest.

During the three-day convention, BIF honored Glen Harvey, owner and operator of Harvey Ranch, Inc., Paisley, Oregon, as Commercial Producer of the Year. Ric Hoyt, Burns, Oregon, was named Seed Stock Producer of the Year at the ceremonies honoring the two cattlemen.

BIF is a national federation of many organizations involved in beef production, including state beef cattle improvement associations, national breed associations, artificial insemination organizations, university and extension beef cattle specialists, and others involved in genetic improvement.

Butler unveils new scale package

FORT ATKINSON, WI – Butler Livestock Systems/Scale Group is offering a unique self-contained scale package for reliable and accurate weighing to fit almost any on-farm need or application. The Butler OMP series of electronic scales provides a choice of indicators, load cells and universal mounts to precisely match the system to the weighing application.

Any OMP model indicator can be used with any Butler load cell or universal mount. The most basic indicator available in the Butler line is the economical OMP-5. The Butler OMP-15 has additional features that increase the scope of its capabilities.

Both indicators provide accuracy to 0.1 of 1%; allow 128 combinations of full scale range and count sizes; and feature shock resistant circuitry. Other features included a sealed membrane front panel; built-in LCD heater for reliable operation even in freezing weather; easy-to-read LCD display; audible/visual feedback from switches; automatic push button balancing; automatic LCD display checks; variable response time; low battery warning; and portable application capability with 12 volt DC power supply.

In addition, the OMP-15 indicator provides built-in memory that permits accumulation of multiple weights from applications such as weighing multi-axles, single animal weights plus accumulated pen weights, and inventory management control.

Another feature of the OMP-15 is easy keyboard selection of multiple and varied applications, including range, count size, display response time, calibration, and lbs./kg selection.

If power from the battery is interrupted or lost, the indicator will retain the memory of the current weight. An optional radio-controlled transmitter/receiver gives the OMP-15 remote operation capability, in aradius of up to 100 feet.

Butler offers a choice of load cells to match the desired weighing capacity, percent accuracy required and application demands; and a choice of universal mounts to fit most any need or application with capacities ranging from 6,000 to 50,000 pounds.

Butler scale components are manufactured in a "clean room" atmosphere to help assure a high level of accuracy and reliability. The Butler Scale Group includes engineering and service in addition to system manufacture and assembly.

For further details about Butler Electronic Scale System, contact your Butler Livestock Systems dealer or write to Butler Livestock Systems/Scale Group, 801 Janesville Avenue, Fort Atkinson, WI 53538. Telephone: (414) 563-5521.

Farm templates created for Commodore computers

ROCKFORD, IL – C-M-P Systems has just published a set of 21 templates, pre-written farm management spreadsheet set-ups, that run on Commodore-64 computers. These are templates originally written to run on the IBM computer. A farmer now gets tremendous computer power for decision work, without spending a lot of money.

No computer programming experience is needed. This wide array of management software gives to the Commodore-64 great convenience and flexibility...and you don't have to learn programming or other complicated computer details. The templates come on a disk and load into the computer as easy as a game.

Many of these templates have been used for demonstration purposes at farm shows...and were operated successfully by people that had never even touched a computer before..a few words of coaching were the only help. However, complete detailed explanations are given in the 54-page C-M-P Systems instruction manual.

A full-size printout for each template is bound into the manual with an example, and a step-by-step discussion explains the example. The manual even goes on to give technical references, for the person that wants detailed background information on a subject.

This is the tool that allows the farmer to test the future by asking, "What if...?" And then it gives the answer in seconds. What a relief it is to be able to devote time to management decision making instead of spending hours with pencil and calculator refiguring the same arithmetic for each little different set of conditions.

The templates are in five major groups...FARM MANAGEMENT: Accelerated Cost Recovery, Land Purchase Analysis, Lease Rent Calculator, and Lease vs. Buying Land...FINANCIAL MANAGEMENT: Cash Flow Worksheet, Debt Retirement Capacity, Financial Statement, Growth of Savings or Investment, Income Statement, and Loan Payment Calculator...

FIELD CROPS: Crop Profit Comparison, Crop Storage Decision Aid, Lease-Cost Fertilizer, Partial Budget For Alfalfa, and Field Crop Budget...LIVESTOCK: Breakeven Feeder Analysis, Cow-Calf Profit, and Dairy Cow Purchase Analysis...MACHINERY AND EQUIPMENT: Machinery Cost Analysis, Machine: Keep or Trade?, and Vehicle Cost.

These Commodore-64 templates are written for the PRACTICALC II spreadsheet. It is high-powered...yet easy to use...and even has simple word processing with some database and graphics abilities. It comes on disk. The instruction manual with PRACTICALC II is unusually clear, concise, and comprehensive.

A special low package price of $99.00 includes the spreadsheet along with the templates. However, either is available separately: the template group (including the manual and the disk) for $49.00, or the spreadsheet for $69.00.

These same farm management templates are available from C-M-P Systems to run on Apricot, Leading Edge, IBM, and similar micro computers using SuperCalc, Multiplan, or VisiCalc.

Upjohn hosts poultry meet

OCEAN CITY, Md. – Representatives of Eastern Shore poultry firms will receive updates on various aspects of breeder management at a Sept. 10 seminar at Carousel Motel, Ocean City, M.D.

Sponsored by Cobb, Incorporated, breeding stock supplier and subsidiary of the The Upjohn Company, the seminar will feature discussions by poultry specialists from England, the University of Delaware and Cobb.

John Portsmouth, a poultry nutritionist from the United Kingdom with 28 years of feed company and consulting experience internationally, will discuss the latest breeder nutritional thinking to improve chick quality.

Also an author of three poultry textbooks, Portsmouth will focus on four main areas of breeder management: body weight control; chick quality as influenced by the age of the breeder flock and the diet; biotin metabolism in immature and mature breeders and the influence of hatchability on chick quality; and the interrelationship between protein, energy and vitamins on egg production and hatchability.

Portsmouth is Executive Director of Peter Hand (G.B.) Limited, a feed supplement company. He has been a consultant for Cobb for three years. In the U.K., he designs feeding programs and provides customer assistance for Cobb.

James Hunnable, Managing Director of Cobb-U.K., will talk about managing the Cobb heavy meat breeder. Areas he'll cover include female body weight control, feeding and lighting from 18 weeks to peak production, feeding from that peak to the end of lay, and male management.

Hunnable, who began working for the company in the area of customer service, is also responsible for Cobb's European, Middle Eastern and African divisions.

Dr. John Rosenberger, professor in the Department of Animal Science and Agricultural Biochemistry at the University of Delaware will provide information on reoviruses. He will focus on the economics and control of avian reovirus infections.

Dr. Terry Wing, Cobb geneticist, will discuss his findings related to poultry meat yield. The increases in further processing and uses of value-added products keep yield in the forefront as a timely topic.

This day-long seminar will be followed by a Nutrition Conference at the Cobb headquarters near Concord, Massachusetts, on Sept. 12. Dr. Portsmouth and Dr. Elbert Day, poultry research at Mississippi State University, will lead discussions at this conference.

TMR system ranks cows for production, breeding

DeFOREST, WI – Nearly every high school locker room in the country has a sign on the wall which declares, "When the going gets tough, the tough get going." Maybe you should hang one of those in your dairy barn.

Certainly, the going is getting tougher in the dairy business these days ... overproduction, thinning margins and reduced price supports. So, how do you toughen up in response?

Some dairymen are using a system called Total Merit Ranking (TMR). It's a tough, no-nonsense program that ranks the cows in a dairyman's herd for actual and potential production and for conformation traits ... a combination of both performance and type. The program does three things, helps make culling decisions, helps identify the best candidates for herd replacements, and helps dairymen decide how much to invest in the A.I. mating of each cow.

It's a recently introduced part of the Genetic Mating Service (GMS) program provided by American Breeders Service. GMS is a program designed to help dairymen get maximum advantage from their dollars spent on semen. By combining the knowledge of people trained to evaluate the physical traits of dairy cows with the memory of modern day computers, each cow in the dairyman's herd can be mated to the bull most likely to improve her weakest traits. The goal is to make their resulting daughter a better cow than the mother.

The heart of the TMR system is the evaluation of each cow as to her actual production – along with her potential based on her sire's PD$ value. These production scores make up 60 percent of her total rating, and along with her GMS evaluation accounting for the remaining 40 percent, provides the cow with a Total Merit Ranking. It's done on a percentile basis. Top cows have the highest ratings, such as a 99, and the lowest cow may be a one.

For tough times

"Our primary purpose in creating the Total Merit Ranking is to provide dairymen with a tough, hard-nosed method to compete in today's rugged farm economy," explains Todd Charnetzki, manager of the ABS Genetic Mating Service. "We believe that getting a realistic evaluation of each cow – and then making management decisions based on that information – is the best long-term route for survival in the dairy business."

Charnetzki points out several practical applications of the evaluation information.

"A dairyman can utilize the information to determine which cows are the ones to cull. The TMR information can also help him decide whether he wants to mate a particular cow to ate bull with the most expensive semen or to choose a bull with less expensive semen. He will probably decide to buy the best semen for his best cows. Or, if he has a large number of heifers, he can use the TMR program to decide which ones to keep."

Charnetzki says the TMR program is available to all GMS herds at no additional cost.

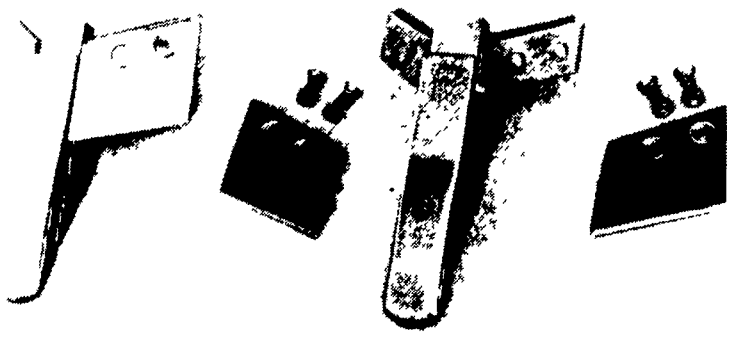
The GMS program, first offered in 1968, recently mated its four-millionth cow. Over 500,000 cows are now enrolled each year.

DMI markets new points

GOODFIELD, IL – DMI, Inc., a manufacturer of agricultural equipment, introduces a new three-piece, heavy-duty point with replaceable bolt-on wings, known as the "Tiger-Point." This point is designed as a replacement part for standard points on V-Rippers as well as the DMI Tiger-Two and DMI Turbo-Tiger II conservation tillage tools.

According to the manufacturer, the new Tiger-Point is made of special chromium carbide material to provide up to three times longer point life, resulting in a lower cost per acre. Also, wings are economical and easy to replace should breakage occur under extreme conditions.

The manufacturer also states that the wings on the patented Tiger-Point are swept down and to the rear to create a lifting and twisting action in the soil without slotting or bulldozing. The points shatter compacted soil which results in reduced ponding, root proliferation and yield increases.



DMI's new "Tiger-Point" three-piece V-ripper replacement point.

Automatic unveils soil mover 1425

Control Data markets dairy management system

ST. PAUL, MN – DairyTRAK, a computerized dairy herd management system for on-farm use, has been introduced by Control Data Corporation's Agricultural Products and Services Division.

DairyTRAK is a complete management system that maintains accurate individual cow and herd records for production, reproduction, health and management. DairyTRAK also produces barn sheets so producers can track and record events such as heat checks, breedings, preg checks, freshenings and vet checks.

"Dairy farmers now using DairyTRAK are benefitting from reduced costs and improved profits as a result of shortened calving intervals, improved milk production, healthier animals, lower health costs and improved labor efficiency," said Brian Roth, vice presidnet of Control Data's Ag Products Division.

Dairy producers can purchase a complete system, including hardware and software, or just the DairyTRAK software from Control Data or from any of the dealers of Control Data's ADVANTAGE line of farm computer products. DairyTRAK runs on the IBM PC and compatible computers and is available for dual floppy or hard disk systems. User manuals, support and training are included to help with easy start up and operation.

Control Data's new Dairy TRAK computerized dairy herd management system for on-farm use produces barn sheets so dairy producers can track and monitor each cow.

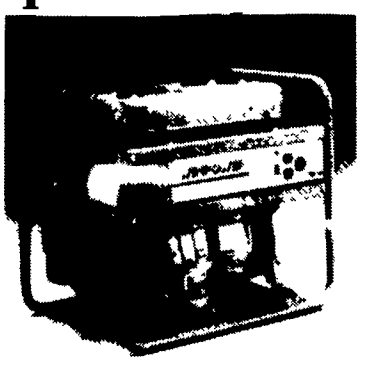
The Winpower model 5000R provides 4,700 watts of continuously rated single phase power with three 120V receptacles and one 240V outlet. Model 4000R provides 3,800 watts of continuously rated power. It also features three 120V and one 240V receptacles. Both models provide AC and DC power. Voltage regulation is ±3% from no load to 100% of rated capacity after temperature stabilization.



The Model 4000R Powr-Pak (R) portable generator from Winpower Corp.

The new heavy duty portables feature voltage selection switch, solid state automatic voltage regulation, mainline circuit breaker protection, voltmeter, indicator light, fuel gauge, engine on/off switch, and recoil starter. Electric start and automatic idle control are optional.

The 5,000 watt model is powered by a 10 hp Wisconsin Robin engine; the 4,000 watt unit by an 8 hp power plant. Automatic idle control is available on both models. Winpower's oil PowR Guard feature shuts the engine off before the level falls below safe limits.

KALAMAZOO, MI. — The Asgrow Seed Company has introduced two new high yielding corn hybrids into its product line.

RX788 is rated at 113 days maturity in the central Corn Belt or 2550 growing degree days to maturity. This new hybrid has averaged 4.1 percent higher yielding than RX777, with less stalk and root lodging. RX788 has shown the same high grain quality found in RX777. RX788 is widely adapted and performs well in the same geographic areas where RX777 is grown. This hybrid has shown excellent yield stability across environments and exceptional performance in the western Corn Belt.

RX892 is a 116-day hybrid in the central Corn Belt. It has an outstanding performance record in Asgrow trials across a wide area, from Maryland to Nebraska. RX892 features a unique, "trim" appearance, with good resistance to stalk and root lodging. It is an excellent yielder under optimum conditions, yet performs well under average conditions.

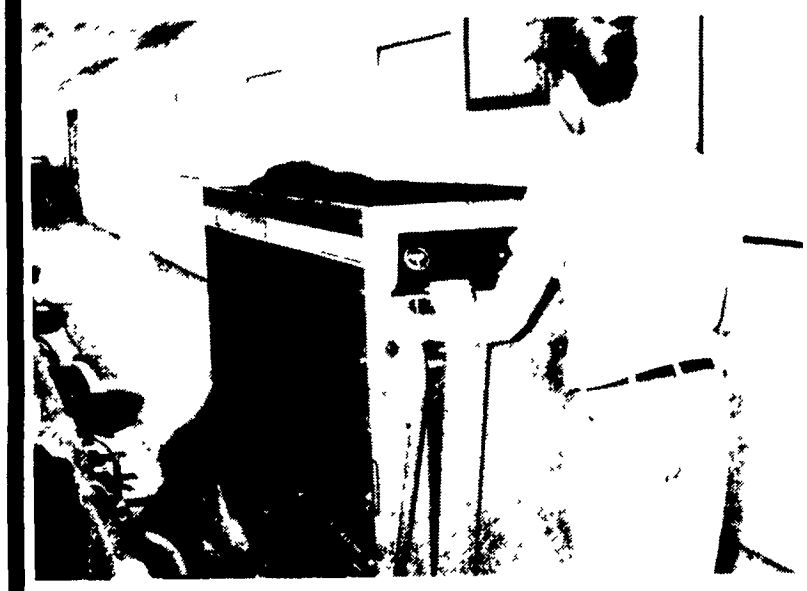
SERIES IV FEED TRANSPORT CART!



Now with convenient hydrostatic drive and extended battery life!

Load it full. Press the new hydrostatic control lever. And you're on your way to feed silage, haylage or any other feed to your dairy herd — quickly, cleanly and conveniently.

With new hydrostatic drive, this new Series IV cart gives you fully variable speed control. Fingertip operation provides any travelling speed you select.

The Weaverline Series IV cart puts you in complete command of your feeding operation. As your Series IV cart moves into position in front of each stall, set the auger and apron-system indicator to discharge the rate of feed you desire. Then shut it off and move on to the next cow. Or if you want, lay a continuous flow of feed. Fast-flow front-end discharge with flexible deflector makes it easy to put your feed right where you want it.

No matter which of the three models you choose, you can depend on Weaverline advanced engineering design. Upkeep, time and labor saved will more than pay for the cost of a Weaverline Series IV transport cart.

Farm Talk

Jerry Webb

Driving tractor at 9

"Nope," came the nine-year-old's reply, "but I can handle a team of horses."

"Don't need a horse man," the farmer replied. "We're looking for a boy who can steer that old tractor there so Billy can get down here and do a man's work buckin' these bales."

"I guess I could try if you don't mind me runnin' over one now and again."

"Sure boy, you just climb right up there and steer straight down the row. No need to stop. We'll be able to keep up. Just don't get excited or mess with any of them levers."

It was a hot day in July and a crew of men and one small boy were loading hay bales left by a pick-up baler. The year was 1942. There was a war on and farmers were lucky to get enough help to make a crew. Those with lots of kids were fortunate because field hands were hard to get even though some could get draft deferments. It was patriotic back then to go to war and farm boys went even though they didn't have to.

So the farming was done by old men, small boys, women and a few drunks who couldn't pass a physical but could sober up now and then long enough to bale some hay and earn a few bucks.

Paul was one of those drunks. He worked the dusty side of an old Case baler like no one else could. He'd be right there tieing those wires with the dust so thick you could hardly see him. Paul's clothes would be soaking wet with sweat and his face a different color from field dust and chaff. But he never complained. In fact, he never said much of anything. He just chewed a great mouthful of Beech-Nut tobacco and tied bales as fast as that old machine could make them.

It was generally thought that Paul had an incurable disease and was slowly dying. But no one was sure. He was a big husky man who could do two men's work and had no idea of his own strength.

He was a day-hand for neighboring farmers who would call on him when they had work. During the threshing and hayinb seasons he was always busy. What he did the rest of the time was not known. They said he visited relatives out of state when he wasn't at home in that old converted chicken house. Maybe he was a sort of one man migrant crew working the hay and wheat fields of Missouri in the summer and the vegetable fields of Florida in the winter.

He always did manual labor–never drove a tractor–didn't even own a car. He was the one who pitched bundles–a chock a throw if you wanted–stacked straw from the thresher or tossed hundred pound hay bales over his head into a hay loft.

He always took the heavy end of a two-man job and small boys soon learned that Paul could be a big help during a hot, hard day.

Being a nine-year-old farm boy wasn't just steering old tractors. There was other work like dragging bales, sacking grain and digging post holes–all jobs a little too big for a boy. But Paul was there to help out, demonstrate the best way to hold a pitchfork or hay hook and how to lift a hay bale the easy way. And if there were 12 bundles in a shock, he would more than likely pitch seven of them.

Paul was the "Big John" of agriculture. He could do back-breaking work all day, take his $5 pay and spend it that night on booze, and be right back in the field at 7 a.m. the next day. Maybe he'd shake a little and sweat more than the rest, but he never quit and he never complained.

Paul went away one fall and never came back. Maybe he died in Florida or wherever it was he went. Small boys weren't always told the truth in those days. It was probably just as well that he didn't come back. By the time the war was over, farmers had switched from threshers to combines and bales were tied by machine.

But that was several years later. Right then the war was blazing and farm help was scarce. So boys, old men and drunks could find plenty of work.

"Sure, I can learn if there's that much money in it."

"Stop by my place Monday morning early and we'll get you started. I've got an almost new Allis Chalmers just right for a boy your size. You have to crank it to start, but that's only once or twice a day and the rest is easy."

Imagine that. Getting paid to drive a tractor. Things couldn't be much better.

TO REVITALIZE THE SOIL AND INCREASE YIELD

The AER-WAY is an utility implement that relieves compaction, aerates, cultivates and renovates. It can function as a rotary hoe, a disc, a roller and a harrow. It saves fuel, time and fertilizer. It increases water percolation, bacterial life and root growth. it is an implement for pastureland, grassland, horse paddocks, general field crops, vegetable production, orchards, vineyards and turfgrass. The AER-WAY will increase your profits through lower costs and higher yields.

LARRY STINSON, Adams N Y

We have got corn on everything from moldboarded to strict no till Our best corn is where we used the Aer way before we planted with our Maxi merge which we added the no till options to last year In our test plot on 4 July we could see the line across the plow where corn didn t curl That line was were we used the Aer way at the three leaf stage On July 19th there was a 10 14 difference depending on corn variety We found that the Aer way worked beautifully to uncorporate spring applied manure on corn ground We used the Aer way on all of our alfalfa We definitely see less heaving loss in the early spring with use of the Aer way in the fall Our consultants tell us that our feeder roots are much more developed and the nodules are very active now

We ve owned an Aer way for two years now This year it is the only tillage tool we ve used We fastened our six row Maxi Merge planter behind it for planting all of our corn We incorporated up to 5 000 gallons of manure We have taken alfalfa stands that were very seriously injured by insects and herbicide interactions in 1982 and by using the Aer way and manure have brought them back to better than prime

Taking Care of the Pastureland Basics

It is rather obvious that pastures have some serious basic problems in handling water, traffic, nutrient movement and residue (plant and animal) decomposition and recycling

Underlying all these problems are the annual root regrowth activities which perennial legumes and grasses must accomplish if they are to survive and be highly productive during another growing season The annual root growth for grasses occurs in early spring when soils are moist and warming This is when the first of the stores of nitrogen and phosphorus are released to support rooting activity

Goals of Aeration of Pasturelands

First and foremost pastureland must have its capacity to transport and store air and water developed to the maximum extent possible This will greatly enhance the amount of annual root growth possible since oxygen levels will have improved in the soil

Secondly loosening the soil with a gentle cultivation action will reduce soil density to permit enhanced root elongation

Thirdly the aeration opening creates a channel by which nutrients and humus compounds migrate downward from the soil surface into the root zone

Next by providing soil atmosphere enhancement it is possible to convert animal waste and plant residue into humus compounds more rapidly This has reduced the problem of rejection of forages growing in or near animal wastes

Magnet (standard)
¾" sizing screen
10" dia. x 24" cracking rolls
PTO shaft provided for blower drive

Feed the whole ear with Bearcat 24RC roller mill.

Now you can cut cobs and kernels into uniform feed with the Bearcat 24RC roller mill. Even husks are cut into small, bite-size pieces. The result: more nutritious, palatable feed.

Six rugged, 20" knives and two cutterbars pre-cut the feed, which then passes through a sizing screen with ¾" holes. Big 10" rollers crack and granulate the corn into high-quality feed. Clearance of ¾" between blades and screen means easy running for fuel efficiency.

Start getting more nutrients per acre now—with a Bearcat 24RC roller mill. Talk to your Kasten dealer.

Vicon introduces sprayers

VIRGINIA BEACH, VA – Vicon, noted for its haymaking equipment and precision fertilizer spreaders, has introduced a complete line of field sprayers. Mounted, trailer and truck-mounted units are all in the sprayer line, with tank capacities that range from 53 to 785 gallons.

The AS4 Series sprayers have booms that stabilize automatically, always keeping them on the level, despite bouncy terrain the grower may be driving over. This provides accurate, trouble-free application of all materials, regardless of rough of hilly field conditions.

The five tractor-mount sprayers range in capacity from 53 to 230 gallons.

All sprayers feature polypropylene tanks with screw-on lids, manual controls with shut-off valves to individual boom sections and easy access step-up platforms. Numerous options are also available.

Brockett's Ag Advice

By John E. Brockett
Farm Management Agent
Lewistown Extension Office

One of the biggest causes of financial stress is unpaid bills whether they are business or personal bills. The blame becomes easy to place and hard to accept, which results in one or more problems. The unpaid bill is rationalized as something that you really don't owe because the company gyped you anyway. The unpaid bill is owed to a large company that won't miss the money.

It and all notices are relegated to the back file because out of sight is out of mind. We'll pay it next month because we expect more income then. A family fight is precipitated because the other person must be doing something wrong.

None of these things solve the problem–in fact they all contribute to making the problem bigger. What causes unpaid bills to happen? There are a number of things that could be factors behind unpaid bills.

(1) The farmer obligated himself to a larger debt payment than the farm can handle.

(2) The operation is run at a lower efficiency level than projected or required to handle obligations.

(3) Unexpected family expenses popped up and were paid causing a business unpaid bill or were not paid causing a personal unpaid bill.

(4) The family members had too high expectations as to the income available from the business for family living–or to put it more bluntly the family was living beyond their means (too high on the hog).

(5) It was too easy to charge things and the expense did not seem real until the bill came.

(6) Wants and needs became as one causing the family to lose sight of reality.

At a recent meeting, I discussed unpaid bills in relation to income. One person asked what a safe level of unpaid bills would be for various types of farming operations. The question was very relevant because so many farmers do have unpaids today.

In my experience an unpaid bill is like paying for a dead horse. You may be obligated to pay it, but there will be no return from it because all of the return that purchase generated was obtained long ago.

The only safe level of unpaid bills is zero percent of income. Up to 5% of income may be tolerated because with any management and luck, it could be paid off with a sale of surplus capital assets. At 10% the farm business is entering the area of serious financial problems. At 20% the farm is no longer a viable business–the options for paying the obligations become very limited with most of the following alternatives not even being available.

The alternatives for paying unpaid bills are: (a) sale of capital assets–causes a reduction of equity value and can not usually be repeated; (b) reducing family spending; (c) a windfall income–also will not be repeated; (d) tightening of operating expenses without reducing income; (e) borrowing against capital assets–reduces equity and may be difficult to repeat in an ag economy with reducing asset values; (f) one family member getting a good job off the farm.

What Do I Do?

If you are not behind on bills now, do not get behind. If you are or do get behind on paying your bills, try to do this. Look at your family living requirement–can you eat out of the freezer for awhile? Or could you forego for a period of time that stereo set or new rug or new car? Or is there some place in your business where you could make management changes that would improve your profit picture?

Then set paying those bills off, coupled with paying new bills as they arise, as a top priority item. As a last resort–and only if you can figure a way to prevent bills from piling up in the future–go to your lender and see if you can rewrite some present debts and borrow enough money to wipe the slate clean as far as unpaid bills are concerned.

None of these things will work over the long haul if you can not discipline yourself to the point where you will not have unpaid bills in the future. That means making some permanent changes in your business to compliment those above temporary measures.

One resolve that new farmers should make when they first start is to keep expenses paid up. That means buying only those items that you can afford, keeping family living within bounds of what the business can handle, not borrowing anything that you have less than a 100% chance of repaying within the life of the item being purchased.

The tightness of living standards may cause family stress, but if both husband and wife are equally committed to the success of the farm, some of this stress will be eliminated by the shared challenge.

It is a discouraging situation to see farmers obligating themselves to payments so far in excess of what they can be expected to make that disaster is practically predetermined. Debt payments in excess of 25% of cash income are starting to push the limit. Those in excess of 35% are impossible for all but the most elite managers and dedicated families.

Those in excess of 45% are impossible period–unless there are other sources of income. Yet I have found farmers and their lenders willing to obligate themselves to as much as 65% of cash income to debt service. I guess the only solution is to figure out what your debt repayment ability really is by doing an analysis.

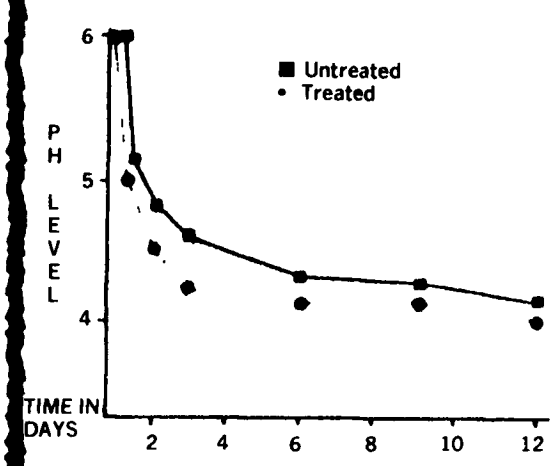
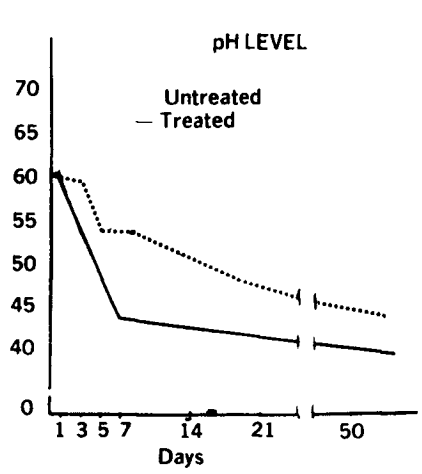
WHAT IS HAPPENING TO THE PH OF YOUR SILAGE?

Culbac treated at a cost of $.67 per ton

X Brand treated at a cost of $1.30 per ton





CULBAC reduces PH

The rapid production of lactic acid speeds the reduction of PF PH. Plant cell respiration ceases and ensiling temperatures are controlled by the rapid reduction of silage pH. A summary of field trial results illustrates that the use of CULBAC on silage results in faster increase in silage acidity as well as a lower end pH value. (See above graphs)

You will notice the pH of the CULBAC treated dropped to 4.3 in three days, while the other took seven days to get to 4.5. May we help you to reach the goal of better silage at a lower cost. We are also doing a bang up job of soil balancing. Try us. Call or write.

PRAISE FOR SUCCESS– BLAME FOR FAILURE

Everyone needs a good pat on the back now and then. It helps to boost the old ego, and even blocks out some of the daily feeling of getting nowhere that most of us feel at times. Someone once expressed the practice of giving and receiving praise as "warm fuzzies." Well, in a world filled with hard knocks and up-hill travel, "warm fuzzies" can be a life saver.

Somtimes compliments come as a sort of routine conversation piece, stuck in because there isn't anything else to talk about. Sometumes it's no more than an expression of having thought about a friend recently, and told him so. A compliment can sometimes be interpreted as "left-handed," meaning that it was orginally intended as something else, but turned out in favor of the recipient. No matter whether it was true-blue or left-handed, a compliment is always welcome, and gives a warm, fuzzy feeling to the day.

Compliments and congratulations for a minor success are often easier to receive than to give. I suspect that it's because we find it easier to point the finger of blame at someone who did not quite come up to our expectations. When things are not going well for us, someone must be responsible, so we start pointing the finger at any likely candidate. When praise is due, it has to be earned, so the target is more accurately pinpointed. Blame is more often a shotgun blast, aimed at anyone who happens to be standing nearby.

WHO IS TO BLAME FOR OUR FARM PROBLEMS?

Our farm problems today are quite unique in the history of the world. In a time when there fewer farmers, fewer cows, and less land inproduction of crops relative to the total population, we are actually suffering from too much of everything we have to sell. And instead of simply curbing that over-supply of farm produce, we find it necessary to work harder, increase efficiency more, spend more on capital input, and turn out more of the same - for which we get paid less than the cost of producing it. We seem to have a bull by the tail and don't quite know how to let go without getting trampled to death.

The first object of finger-pointing is the government. A very elusive "someone" in Washington or Harrisburg did something wrong, that caused the whole mess. It matters not whether it was recently or 20 years ago, in a Democratic or Republican administration. The current President or political party usually gets the blame, because they are standing in the line of fire, even though we may just now be feeling the results of political actions taken long ago. And those actions could have been quite honorable and noble at the time, with long-time results that were hard to foresee.

While we are aiming the shotgun at politicians, bankers and economists, let's take a look at the finger on the trigger. Notice that it is pointing back at you! Maybe some of the guilt for farm surplus can be laid on the one holding the gun.

Now please do not think for a moment that I am suggesting that every farmer is to blame for the troubles of over-production, poor distribution, and deficit financing that is plaguing the country. For the most part, we are where we are because you have worked too hard, invested too much, borrowed too heavily, and are too productive. And because of our over-enthusiasm about the job we love, we continue to "load sixteen ton and what do you get?–another day older and deeper in debt!"

All of us are to blame, and none are. All farmers deserve praise for a job well done, and yet none are getting the thanks they should. A well-fed nation continues to scream about the cost, and forgets to congratulate the ones who feed them.

Those who are able to sift through the reasons for depression in the time of plenty, and get farming back on a profitable and solvent basis will deserve the praise of the whole world for years to come. Is that trigger finger still pointing at you?

Purina's new Egg Weight Plus™ brand LAYING FEEDS increases egg size and returns!

Now Purina's Egg Weight Plus adds to the Accu-Line Program another way to increase egg size. These new Accu-Line™ brand laying feeds can improve egg size from young layers, whenever hot weather depresses egg size below market demands or anytime the price spread is wide between Medium and Large eggs.

Producers that feed Accu-Line realize the value of increasing egg size. With Accu-Line, they've increased egg size to meet changing market conditions, while maximizing the number of marketable eggs. The result—improved profits!

Egg Weight Plus increases egg size above that achieved by the current Accu-Line program.

To increase your egg size with Accu-Line or Accu-Line Egg Weight Plus, see your Purina Dealer or District Manager today.
